PRISONERS 'SET FREE TOO EARLY'

Police union claims early release scheme brings entire legal system into disrepute

NEARLY 900 prisoners have been released early from Kent prisons.

One in five of these could have convictions for violent offences – including GBH.

New figures published by the Ministry of Justice show that 889 prisoners were set free under the Government's End of Custody Licence. This was introduced last June to tackle prison overcrowding.

The Police Federation, which represents rank and file officers, said the policy brought the criminal justice system into disrepute.

Damian Green, Tory MP for Ashford, said the figures showed the prison overcrowding crisis was getting worse.

The Tory frontbencher said: "You don't go to jail unless you commit a serious crime."

"There are people who are out on Kent streets who should still be in jail serving their sentence."

"It's not just the danger to the community, people don't have enough respect for a prison sentence. People need to know that if someone commits a crime they will do the time."

Nationally, nearly one in five of the 23,000 offenders released up to 18 days early were convicted of violent offences. In Kent, that would equate to around 170 prisoners.

The Government has said the scheme only applied to prisoners whose offences "are not considered serious enough by the court to justify a long term of imprisonment".

However, PC Ian Pointon, chairman of the Kent Police Federation, said some of those released included people who had committed grievous bodily harm. He added: "[The Government's] definition of a serious violent offence doesn't sit comfortably with me."

PC Pointon said the scheme was "purely about logistics", rather than whether a prisoner was fit to be released. He added that prison overcrowding was a long-term issue that was not the fault of any one government.

By PHIL REILLY

Tory MP David Davies, a member of the Home Affairs Select Committee and founder of the group SAFER (Stop All Forms of Early Release), has called for a doubling of the UK's prison population.

Currently, around 82,000 prisoners are in Britain's jails.

Harry Fletcher, assistant general secretary of the probation officer union Napo, said the policy had failed to stabilise the prison population.

He said: "The Government failed to anticipate the surge in prison numbers in the last five or six years and has not taken measures to deal with it. The consequence is they faced the embarrassment of letting people out early, which hasn't worked."

However, a spokeswoman for charity Victim Support said it would "not condemn early release outright".

She added: "Many victims of crime understand that early release is not a necessarily a bad thing because alongside it come safe-

THE Conservatives are hoping to turn the entire county blue at the next general election after convincing council gains.

The Tories took control of Maidstone Borough Council for the first time since 1982 this week, and also maintained control of councils in Tunbridge Wells and Swale.

Bob Neill, the shadow local government minister, said the prospect of the party taking all Labour's Kent parliamentary seats at the next general election was "on the cards".

The MP for Bromley and Chislehurst said that Kent would be a key battleground and insisted that Thursday night's results showed the party could win.

The Tories recently released a list of just over 100 key target seats, including eight Kent constituencies.

Mr Neill said the size of the Tory vote on Thursday would translate to a 169 seat majority if it were repeated at the next election.

He said: "A 20 per cent lead for the opposition party is the situation that Tony Blair was getting into in the 1990s."

"Gordon Brown has lost the confidence of Middle England. Areas like Gillingham and Medway are the key areas that Labour had succeeded in taking from us. We take Kent seriously."

Stephen Ladyman, Labour MP for South Thanet and a vice-chairman of the party, used a football analogy to explain the situation at the next election.

He said: "It's like being 1-0 down at half-time. How many times do the best teams win in the last 10 minutes of the game?

"Gordon Brown is the Steven Gerrard of politics - he'll be the winner at the next election."

Steven Gerrard's Liverpool side were knocked out of the Champions League this week by the Blues of Chelsea.

In Maidstone, which had previously been a hung council, the Tories claimed two extra seats, bringing their total to 29 and giving them a clear majority.

Labour lost two seats, leaving them with just a solitary councillor in the county town, while the Liberal Democrats ended the night with 22 councillors. There are also five independents.

In Swale, the Tories tightened their hold on the authority with a gain of one seat, while Labour and the Lib Dems both lost a councillor.

The Conservatives now have 26 seats to Labour's nine and the Liberal Democrats' five.

The Tories' control of Tunbridge Wells was never in doubt having started the night with a 34-seat majority, but they managed to wrest a further three seats off the Liberal Democrats.

They now have 44 seats to the Lib Dems' four. Labour is not represented at all on the council.

Turnout was marginally down in Maidstone at 36 per cent, whereas Tunbridge Wells was up two points to 39 per cent.

Kent on Sunday visited several polling stations on Thursday and found voters thin on the ground.

In Maidstone, two polling stations were completely empty between 5.45-6.15pm, while at around 8pm at St John's Church in Tunbridge Wells more people had turned up for the Bible study group meeting than to vote.

Jon Harvey at the Mount Ephraim polling station said that he had not seen any councillors canvassing for votes.

The 37 year old, who is originally from Clapham, said: "I think the Tories have got very complacent here. The level of choice in the area is pathetic."

At the hockey club in Maidstone's Armstrong Road, David and Michelle Stenning, 33 and 34, said they were voting solely on local issues.

Both had previously voted Liberal Democrat, but this time Michelle had switched to the Tories.

She said: "I normally vote Lib Dem, but this is a vote of dissatisfaction."

guards such as measures to monitor and supervise those prisoners who are released early."

A Ministry of Justice spokesman claimed the scheme was "working well". He said it is not necessarily the case that offenders held in Kent would stay in the county on release.

He said: "Prisoners with a current conviction for the most serious violent offences and registered sex offenders are not eligible for ECL."

"We are monitoring the scheme carefully. So far the data collected about ECL indicates that the scheme is working well and the rate of recall has been lower than expected."

"Of those released on ECL, just one per cent has been notified to the National Offender Management Service as allegedly offending during the ECL period."

Gwyn Prosser, the Labour MP who campaigned to prevent an open prison being built at Dover's Connaught Barracks, said that at the moment there was "no alternative" to the ECL.

He added: "You can't fast forward the building of new prisons. I honestly don't think the impact on society of someone coming home two weeks or 18 days early is a very big difference."

Betting tycoon wins EU treaty legal fight

MILLIONAIRE Stuart Wheeler has won the right to mount a High Court challenge against the Government's decision not to hold a referendum on a controversial EU treaty.

The spread-bet tycoon, who owns Chilham Castle, said he was delighted with Friday's ruling, which means a hearing will take place on June 9-10.

Prime Minister Gordon Brown rejected a public vote on the EU Reform Treaty, which critics have argued is virtually the same as the scrapped EU Constitution.

The treaty was drawn up to replace the EU Constitution, which was rejected by France and Holland in 2005.

Mr Wheeler, 73, a former barrister, said on Friday: "I am delighted to say that in his judgement delivered at the High Court this morning Mr Justice Owen decided that permission to apply for judicial review would be granted to me."

The Tories' shadow Foreign Secretary William Hague said: "The Government promised a referendum on the EU Treaty which is the constitution in disguise."

"It would be a great day for democracy if they were forced to honour that promise."

REFERENDUM BID: Stuart Wheeler

However, a Foreign Office spokesman said: "We are confident of the strength of our case on this occasion and look forward to putting our arguments before the court in more detail in due course."

FOND FAREWELL: Colleagues and listeners gathered at the radio station to throw a surprise baby shower for Ali Wheeler (centre)

Tearful Ali swaps Invicta audience for motherhood

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

FROM hanging out with celebrities to hanging out baby grows – it's the end of an era as Ali Wheeler leaves Invicta FM to embrace motherhood.

An emotional Ali was surprised by listeners, fellow DJs and the rest of the breakfast show team as a going-away bash and baby shower was held for the popular host on Friday.

She said: "I'm really sad. Listeners came in and we had lots of presents and once I got over bawling my eyes out it was a really good show and a really good way to say goodbye."

After three years co-hosting the James and Ali in the Morning show, the 33-year-old presenter spoke to KoS and reminisced about her time at the Kent radio station.

"It has been a real journey and absolutely brilliant," she said. "I've done so many things and been given the chance to do things I never imagined I'd do, like skydiving, which I still can't quite believe I did, and flying a helicopter."

"But on the other end of the scale, I did eat a dog-food pie for a feature on Crufts."

She said she loved writing her Ali's Goss column for KOS Media and getting to meet a host of celebrities from Ricky Gervais, who was "amazing", to Leslie Grantham aka Dirty Den, who was "just brilliant".

The enthusiastic former PR girl said: "I'm really going to miss waking up every morning and getting to wake up Kent."

"Every day was different on the show – you'd start a live report and have no idea where it was going to go. It was fantastic to have that interaction with listeners. It is so spontaneous and exciting."

And Ali's not stopping for a minute, moving house with her husband Hayden to Beckenham and redecorating ahead of the baby's arrival July.

Talking about the pregnancy, she said she was looking forward to not having to get up at 4.30am anymore.

"I've had really sleepless nights. It's leaving me shattered. I'm scared but also really excited. With all the hormones I'm fearless one moment and ready to take on the world and the next I'm fearful and want to hide under a rock."

"But at the end of the day I feel like I'm the only one, but I know women who go on to have three or four so it can't be that bad."

Decision

Although the baby was somewhat of a surprise, Ali said she could not be more thrilled.

She was confident her co-host would make the James Heming in the Morning show a great success.

"Of course I'll miss him. He's my radio husband – I see him more than my own husband. He's become my best friend, so it is not the end just a new phase of our friendship and we'll always have this connection which is really unique."

James' new show will give listeners the chance to win £1,000 every day, and there will be celebrity guests including Channel 4's How to Look Good Naked host Gok Wan and family favourite Keith Chegwin.

She added: "I've had the time of my life. Choosing motherhood has been the hardest decision I've ever had to make but I think it's the right one. I've had a ball and the listeners have made it."

Ali's husband works for a record company in London and living closer to work he will be able to spend more time in the mornings and evening with their first baby.

But she hasn't ruled out a return to radio in the future.

Green belt threat

GREEN belt land in Kent could be under threat, according to a report by the Campaign to Protect Rural England.

The report claims the boundaries of green belt land at Sevenoaks and Tunbridge Wells are to be reviewed with a view to accommodating new housing developments.

The CPRE claims 1,100 hectares have been lost across the country since 1997.

It also claims 45,240 homes have been built on this land – the equivalent of a city the size of Bath.

The CPRE points to two recent decisions in Bromley and Bexley to build on more than 150 hectares of green belt land.

Paul Miner, the CPRE's senior planning campaigner, said the green belt was being "seriously eroded".

He said: "Too much development has already been permitted and some Government inspectors appear to be interpreting green belt policy in their own way."

"This is making a mockery of the permanence which green belts are supposed to have."

Soldiers' freedom

GURKHAS will march through Sandgate tomorrow as they get the freedom of the town.

The 2nd Battalion, the Royal Gurkha Rifles, which is based at Shorncliffe Barracks, Folkestone, will have the honour conferred by Cllr Geoffrey Boot, Mayor of Sandgate.

Accompanied by a piper, about 60 troops will set off at 11am from Military Road to the Sir John Moore memorial statue, where they will formally be given a Freedom of Sandgate scroll.

A spokesman for the Army: "It is a great honour to be conferred the freedom of Sandgate, a place where the very roots of modern soldiering were planted, and a mark of our continuing strong ties with and place within the local community."

Sir John Moore, often considered the founder of the modern British Army, spent some of his military career at Shorncliffe Barracks, where troops trained to fight the Peninsular War against Napoleon on the Iberian Peninsula.

Cllr Jan Holben, of Sandgate Town Council, said: "We often see the Gurkhas running up or down Military Road, or along The Esplanade, in training kit, usually with a weighted backpack – they are always polite and wish you a good morning or afternoon as they run past."

"If you speak to anybody here they will tell you that they are extremely proud to be associated with the Gurkhas."

Deadly superbug alert after student's death

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

CASES of a deadly new strain of the superbug MRSA have increased.

A University of Kent student died after contracting a Panton-Valentine Leukocidin (PVL) infection last year.

PVL is a toxic substance produced by some strains of MRSA, the bacterium that usually infects elderly people and severely ill patients in hospitals. In contrast, previously healthy young adults and children generally contract PVL in the community.

Dr Mathi Chandrakumar, director of the Kent Health Protection Unit, said: "It can affect anyone but particularly children and young adults because of the fact that they have contact with each other."

The latest UK figures from the Health Protection Agency show there were 224 cases of PVL in 2005, which rose to 496 in 2006. Some doctors have warned that serious cases of PVL, which can prove fatal, are likely to increase.

Cases

Dr Chandrakumar said it would be "very difficult to predict" whether this would be the case. He said: "Generally, infections have gone up. In Kent we had some cases last year – but recently we have not had any."

Medway NHS Foundation Trust said there had been one case last year and that the patient had been treated and fully recovered. Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust reported the same and East Kent NHS Hospitals Trust said it had never dealt with a case of the infection.

A spokeswoman for the HPA confirmed that only one person had died from PVL in the county, the university student, but said there had been a "cluster" of pupils at Cranbrook School, in one of its boarding houses, who were taken ill with the infection last year. They all recovered.

However, PVL can make its victims seriously ill and at an alarming rate. A 10-year-old boy caught the infection after falling in a playground in north London. A newspaper report said that within two days he had gone into septic shock and suffered organ failure. The infection can also get into the skeleton.

The boy is now mainly confined to a wheelchair after he underwent five operations to scrape out the infected bone from his leg and hip.

The HPA said PVL normally causes an inflammation of layers under the skin and pus-producing skin infections, such as abscesses and boils. Some cases, particularly among young adults, can lead to necrotising pneumonia, which eats away at lung tissue and can prove fatal. Dr Chandrakumar said the severity of the infection depended on a lot of factors, including resistance to bacterium and how much PVL entered the body.

But he said parents should not worry because the infection remains rare and the bacterium can be carried on the skin without any harmful effect.

KOS Media has been running a campaign aimed at raising awareness about the importance of hand hygiene in combating health-care acquired infections such as MRSA and Clostridium difficile.

Although the risk of catching PVL-MRSA is small, the HPA recommends people take simple precautions to protect themselves including hand-washing, regular showering or bathing, regular changing of bed linen and underwear, keeping wounds covered until they heal and avoiding sharing personal items such as toothbrushes and towels.

Microbiologists believe the PVL-MRSA has evolved from strains common in hospitals during the 1950s and '60s. For more information go to www.hpa.org.uk.

Stagecoach loses city's park and ride contract

ONE of Kent County Council's commercial companies has beaten private bidders to win a major contract to operate Canterbury's park and ride scheme.

Kent Top Travel does not yet have any buses to operate the routes, but a KCC spokesman insisted that "everything is in hand for a seamless transfer in October".

It is understood that the required fleet would cost £1million.

Kent Top Travel will take over the running of the scheme from Stagecoach, which had held the contract since its inception 17 years ago. It saw off rival bids from three companies, including Stagecoach.

Paul Southgate, Stagecoach's operations manager, said the company was "very disappointed" to lose the contract.

The decision was made by Conservative-run Canterbury City Council. Liberal Democrat opposition leader Cllr Alex

Perkins criticised the council for making the decision "behind closed doors". He said: "Nobody outside the council's cabinet has been given any details of the deal."

An insider questioned if Canterbury's decision had been affected by its "reliance on KCC to provide discretionary funding for slip roads in Wincheap, the Beaney Institute and the Marlowe Theatre".

But a council spokesman insisted the deal was conducted with "utmost propriety". KCC has fended off criticism of a lack of transparency in its commercial operations, not least after Cllr Mike Snelling neglected to declare an interest during a recent debate.

Cllr Snelling is a non-executive director of Kent Top Temps, a recruitment company run by KCC. Private sector anger is mounting over competition from KCC, leading to accusations that it is cross-subsidising its commercial firms, which the council denies.

April sees 1.3% house price drop

HOUSE prices fell by 1.3 per cent last month, according to the Halifax.

New data from Britain's biggest mortgage lender shows that house prices are now 0.9 per cent lower than they were in April 2007.

The lender said a squeeze on consumer spending was part to blame for the decline in prices.

It also pointed to the large rise in residential property values over recent years.

Halifax said prices have fallen by 4.2 per cent since the beginning of the year.

It expects to see a "mid-single digit" drop in prices over the year, but warned there would be regional variations.

Earlier this week, Halifax's parent company HBOS unveiled a £4billion rights issue to strengthen its capital position in what it described as a "deteriorating credit environment".

Analysts said house prices were "buckling markedly under the double whammy of stretched buyer affordability and very tight lending conditions".

Oil giant takes wind out of estuary project's sails

GERMAN-OWNED energy company E.ON is considering buying oil giant Shell's share in the world's largest offshore wind farm planned off the coast of Kent.

The world's second largest oil company threw the future of the £2 billion London Array into doubt after announcing its decision to pull out of the project on Wednesday.

Environmental campaigners have attacked the decision and Green MEP Caroline Lucas said the company was being "greedy, irresponsible and backward-looking".

But Shell appeared to shift the

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

blame for its decision onto Westminster, saying it would continue to pursue its wind energy interests in the United States where there are "government incentives to deliver what we believe are competitive returns".

E.ON, which is Shell's equal partner in the project, said it was "disappointed" by the loss of the 33 per cent stake.

Asked whether the company was now looking to buy out Shell's stake, a spokesman said: "That is a possibility, but we are considering our options. We believe it is in everyone's interest that the partners come to a conclusion as soon as possible."

If the wind farm, which would be 12 miles offshore in the outer Thames Estuary, goes ahead it would produce enough clean, renewable power to supply a quarter of Greater London homes.

Paul Golby, E.ON UK's chief executive, said: "We are very disappointed by Shell's decision but will continue to work with them as we look to find a way forward. At the very least, some delay to the project is now inevitable.

"While we remain committed to the scheme, Shell has introduced a new element of risk which will need to be assessed.

"The economics of the project are marginal at best, with rising steel prices, bottlenecks in turbine supply and competition from the rest of the world all moving against us."

Shell this week revealed first quarter profits of £4 billion.

Charlie Kronick, a Greenpeace climate campaigner, said: "Shell and other oil companies have never been serious about investing in renewable energy.

"The company's shares in London Array were its last token commitment to renewable energy after selling off their solar interests last year at a discount price. And now they've even ditched this."

He said Shell, along with other oil majors, was investing millions to extract oil from the Canadian tar sands. Critics say this damages forests and the environment.

A spokesman for Shell said: "As part of an ongoing review of projects and investment choices, Shell has taken the strategic decision to look at disposing of its shareholding in London Array.

"We constantly review our projects and investment choices, focusing on capital discipline and efficiency. In this context the London Array project, which is still in its development phase, is being looked at as part of an ongoing process."

The London Array is part of the Government's plans to meet the EU target of producing 20 per cent of the country's total energy from renewables by 2020.

The other partner on the project is wind power specialist DONG Energy, which is majority-owned by the Danish government.

Why we must stockpile oil

By PHIL REILLY

phil.reilly@kosmedia.co.uk

A LABOUR MP has called for the Government to stockpile oil reserves in the face of a long-term global crisis.

Derek Wyatt, who represents Sittingbourne and Sheppey, warned that high oil prices will be with us for many years and called for a rethink in the UK's approach to the crisis.

He said military bases should be used by the Government to stockpile oil.

He said: "This is a profound issue. I think we have to ask army, navy and air force bases that hold oil to double their capacity."

"Oil will rise to $500 a barrel in five years and it will affect every western democracy."

"If you don't have a public sector holding of oil you're in real trouble."

Mr Wyatt said Britain "can't solve this on its own" and insisted that international institutions such as the

STORMY WATERS: Sittingbourne and Sheppey MP Derek Wyatt is urging the Government to build up the UK's stockpiles of oil as prices rise

United Nations move too slowly to deal with global crises.

He was speaking in the wake of a protest by hauliers in Westminster this week, dozens of whom were from his own constituency.

The group met at the Medway services on the M2 on Tuesday morning before leaving to join others from around the country to protest in London's Park Lane.

They are angry at the steep rise in diesel prices, which have shot up by 30 per cent in the last year.

It comes against a backdrop of huge profits for oil companies benefiting from the surge in oil prices. BP announced this week that its net profits had risen to £3.84 billion in the first quarter of 2008, an increase of more than 60 per cent compared with the same period in 2007.

The hauliers claimed the cost of running a goods-carrying lorry was now more than £1,000 a week.

Mr Wyatt, who met the protestors as they delivered a symbolic coffin to the Houses of Parliament, said the Government should act to help them. He called for British hauliers to receive a fuel rebate.

"I think that is reasonable," he said. "It is not a level playing field. They are losing £3,000 to £5,000 a week because of the fuel increases as well as bigger insurance fees."

Mr Wyatt said the result of the US election in November would have a huge bearing on the international oil markets.

He added: "The futures market is taking the view that John McCain is going to bomb Iran, which is one of the biggest oil holders."

"Hillary Clinton has also made comments about Iran that were ill-thought through."

Mrs Clinton said that if Tehran ordered nuclear attacks on Israel, she would respond by "obliterating" the country.

Mr Wyatt said he hoped Barack Obama would win the election, having met the politician in Chicago last week.

"I was thoroughly impressed. He is the fundamental Kennedy figure for the 21st century," he said.

The man is described as being from Afghanistan and in his early 20s. If you have any information, contact DC David Taft on 01622 604270 or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Pupils pocket £2.5m

SCHOOLCHILDREN in Medway have pocketed more than £2.5 million in government handouts so far this year – simply for staying in education, writes Simon Robinson.

The money has been sent directly into the bank accounts of 2,747 teenagers across the region under the Education Maintenance Allowance scheme.

Figures obtained by KOS Media in a Freedom of Information request to the Learning and Skills Council show the cash for learning initiative has already cost £11.6 million in Kent and £487.3 million nationwide during the 2007-08 academic year – equating to £904.50 for each student. The TaxPayers' Alliance said the payments equated to bribery and that the money would be better spent on improving basic skills.

The EMA scheme was launched in 2004 to encourage teenagers from low and middle-income families to stay on in full-time education after turning 16.

Any pupil whose annual household income is less than £30,810 is entitled to cash, with those whose family income is less than £20,817 getting the maximum of £30 per week.

Bonuses are also available to high achievers, meaning the highest amount a student could receive in a year is £1,400.

Despite the cost, the EMA drive has been hailed a success by Labour politicians, who argue the monetary incentive has led to an uptake in further education.

Violent video games are harmless fun for adults

GRAND Theft Auto IV, the latest in the notorious computer game series, has arrived – and with it an inevitable round of condemnation.

The first GTA title was published a decade ago and since then, the franchise has become one of the most popular in the world.

It is a big success story for British developer Rockstar Games, which now has outlets across the UK and North America.

The company has constantly courted controversy. In March, it overturned a ban by the British Board of Film Classification on Manhunt 2, which was originally outlawed for being “sadistic, brutal and bleak”.

The premise of the GTA series is much less horrific, but is certainly not for the squeamish. Players progress through the games by stealing cars, killing other criminals and evading the police.

In fact, the fictional cities allow them to do pretty much whatever they want – from running over pedestrians and robbing banks to picking up prostitutes and closing drug deals.

GTA IV, which was released on Tuesday, carries on where the previous titles left off – plunging the player into a criminal underworld in which rival gangs vie for territory.

You play Eastern European immigrant

Niko Bellic, newly arrived in Liberty City, who starts working for his bungling taxi firm owner cousin Roman.

It is not long before you are tasked with saving your relative from thugs he owes money to – by punching, kicking and head-butting them into submission. Other early plot lines include gunning down a gang attempting to mete out some punishment to a pal and helping someone escape arrest by losing police in a high-speed getaway.

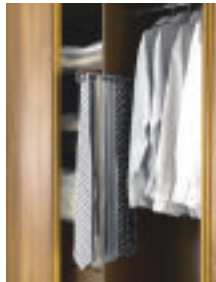

Another mission sees you scaring a shop owner into paying protection money by flinging a brick through his window.

Although clearly not for the faint-hearted, the content is actually much less extreme than many other computer games available and a lot less shocking than any number of horror films that also have an 18 certificate.

There is undoubtedly a problem with children being able to get hold of games like GTA IV and that may be because of the speed at which the industry has expanded over the last 20 or so years. It is only now that many parents are aware of the adult content of games that are available.

Children should no doubt be stopped from playing 18 ratings games like GTA IV and that is the responsibility of shop owners and parents. For adults, it is nothing more than harmless escapism.

A culture of fear links the King to Grand Theft Auto

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

PANIC over the digital world of the internet and video games is a recycling of the fears and anxieties parents have over the perceived dangers of the real world, according to a Kent professor.

The arrival of Grand Theft Auto IV has been met with worldwide excitement from gamers who are expected to spend £200 million on the video game in its first week of release.

But the highly realistic rendering of the game, which sees its main character run over pedestrians, shoot police and sleep with prostitutes, has been criticised by parent groups and pro-censorship advocates.

Frank Furedi, professor of sociology at the University of Kent, believes the hysteria surrounding video games from some quarters is part of a general "culture of fear" that has shrouded modern society.

He said: "Children have been prevented from walking the streets and playing outside. Video games have become part and parcel of a new 'bedroom culture', which seems to have created some very hysterical reactions about what the children are getting up to and gaming is one of them."

Prof Furedi said the same kind of moral panic had been seen for decades, when new media has a violent – such as the shootings in Westerns – or sexual content.

Leslie Benzies, president of the company behind GTA, Rockstar North, has compared his critics to the kind of people who complained about Elvis Presley in the 1950s.

But as the father of a 12-year-old boy, Prof Furedi, said he did understand parents who found it disturbing that young children played games with copious use of bad language and featuring sex with prostitutes.

Asked whether he would allow his son to play the 18-rated game, he said: "I would have to think about it. I would rather have a look myself."

"It is not so much the violence, I'd be more worried about the signals it sends

ACTION: Fans are expected to spend £200 million in the first week of GTA IV's release about sexual and moral behaviour.

"You have got to talk to your kids about the world as it is. It is parents' responsibility to make their children media literate."

"I do not have that much of a problem with GTA – it is done in good humour. Most children can distinguish between reality and a video game and it is sad if adults do not see that."

Irresponsible

Julian Brazier, the Conservative MP for Canterbury and Whitstable, who has been campaigning for more films and video games with violent and sexual content to be banned, described GTA as "just one more example of a game being released, which is looking to encourage young people into irresponsible behaviour".

He added: "Young people are easily influenced and even adults can be influenced by violence on the screen. And in video games it is not just on screen – players are actively participating in violence."

Mr Brazier the game could easily fall into the hands of under 18s.

Prof Furedi said it was more important for parents to take responsibility and explain to children what is right and wrong.

He said: "Children are always testing boundaries, wanting to see films and play video games for adults. They have to learn to deal with their parents' decision."

"But at the end of the day these are just games, they are not going to destroy their children's way of life. And most kids would rather be hanging out in the park with their friends."

"Society is recycling fears and anxieties about the outdoors and strangers into a new area, which is having the same unhelpful effect."

MP Shaw in mission to block whaling

THE fisheries minister is flying to Chile in a bid to enlist more countries to oppose the "barbaric" practice of commercial whaling.

Jonathan Shaw, the Labour MP for Chatham and Aylesford, will be travelling to the International Whaling Conference in Santiago in June.

The International Whaling Commission bans the hunting of whales for commercial reasons, although some countries want the ban lifted.

Britain is one of the nations forming a majority within the commission to block these attempts. However, Mr Shaw said that some countries, including Japan, Norway and Denmark, want a return to legal commercial whaling.

He said: "We haven't had commercial whaling since the 1960s, but there is no consensus. At the moment Britain is one of the leading nations to make sure there is a blocking majority to stop whaling. I have to work with other countries to make sure that majority continues."

He is also planning to speak out against so-called "scientific whaling", which is legal. It is a practice that Japanese fleets are engaged in where whales are killed in order to gauge their numbers.

Last November, Japan sent a fleet of four ships into the South Pacific with the aim of killing up to 1,000 whales in the name of scientific research.

These were mostly minke whales, although there were smaller quotas for fin and humpback whales.

Ultimately they only killed 551 minke after being dogged by anti-whaling activists, whom the Japanese accused of sabotage.

Mr Shaw added: "We have never seen any of their research. It has not been peer reviewed and not been subject to independent scrutiny. Japan last year announced they were intending to kill humpback

SHARP END: Fisheries Minister Jonathan Shaw (inset), the Chatham and Aylesford MP, opposes any return to legal commercial whaling whales – these are endangered. There is a huge amount of public and political pressure. I summoned the deputy ambassador to explain and for him to understand our displeasure.

"I asked for reassurance that they would never announce they would hunt humpback whales again. He wouldn't give me that assurance."

According to Greenpeace, which had activists trailing the Japanese ships, whale populations have not recovered despite the ban on commercial whaling.

They claim that research shows there were about 1.5 million humpback whales before the onset of commercial whaling in the 1800s – that number is now 20,000.

A spokesman said it is not known if some species will ever recover.

He said: "The statistics say it all. The blue whales of the Antarctic are at less than one per cent of their original numbers, despite 40 years of protection. Some populations of whales are recovering but some are not."

LOCAL CALL N51E

'Give mobile callers right to roam'

A TORY frontbencher has begun a bid to promote the use of network sharing so mobile phone users get the best signal wherever they are in the country.

Greg Clark, the MP for Tunbridge Wells, unveiled his Right to Roam Bill in the House of Commons on Tuesday.

Introducing network sharing would reduce the number of mobile phone masts and address health concerns, especially when they are located near schools, he said.

The users of the 70 million mobile phones across the country would benefit from improved reception if the bill is passed.

Mr Clark said: "Mobile phone blackspots are a constant irritation, especially when travelling or in rural areas."

"My bill encourages mobile phone companies to share their networks to ensure the very best possible signal is provided to your phone wherever you are in the country."

He said the numbers of new base stations and masts would decrease significantly, which would help solve planning permission problems.

"This is not rocket science," Mr Clark said.

"Roaming is already commonplace in Europe and beyond. Whenever you receive a mobile phone call when abroad, you are roaming. Your home provider will not normally provide a service in the country in which you are travelling, so you will roam onto a foreign network.

"For providing this service, the foreign network operator will charge your home operator."

"In the UK, roaming would work in exactly the same way. Your mobile phone would pick up the strongest network signal and use this for your call."

Streets reclaimed in a job well done

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

DRUG dealing, burglary and violent crime were rife at two housing estates in north Kent, making them constant fixtures on the county's list of high crime areas.

But within two years a police crackdown led by Chief Superintendent Gary Beautridge has meant North Farm and Christian Fields in Gravesend have been reclaimed from the criminals.

"We have been holding people to account for what they do, from burgling homes and selling drugs to dropping litter," said Mr Beautridge.

"If we have the information or the evidence we will do something about it."

Two years ago the north Kent policing area was listed as "failing" in performance reports across the board.

Mr Beautridge was brought in to reduce soaring crime levels and tackle criminals that had been given free rein in the area.

The tough-talking police chief listed improving the notorious estates during a six-month crackdown as one of the biggest achievements during his time as area commander.

He said: "The overwhelming majority of residents are lovely, decent, law-abiding people."

"We had a patrolling strategy which was used very much on the frontline and through enforcement. We had 'walking enforcement', talking to people and making out arrests, as well as forcing entry and carrying out search warrants."

In partnership with Gravesend District Council, Mr Beautridge agreed to eviction notices so those convicted of burglary or selling drugs would be forced out of the area.

He said the strategy was about making the criminals "uncomfortable".

Overall crime levels in north Kent have improved 25 per cent and house burglary is down by 20 per cent since he took over.

At the same time, sanctioned detection rates have gone up, which means more people are getting punished for their crimes through, for example, being charged, cautioned or fined.

Mr Beautridge said north Kent had the highest sanctioned detection rates in the county for the last two years.

Climb aboard to relive wartime role of railways

KENT and East Sussex Railway will be revisiting the 1940s with an event celebrating the role of the railways during the Second World War.

Tenderden station will host the two-day event, which will feature a replica of a 1940s repair workshop, dancing and land army and RAF displays.

Organisations also involved include Lashenden Air Museum, the Hawker Hurricane Society, the Fire Service Preservation Society and the Folkestone Home Guard.

Northiam station in East Sussex will also display military and civilian vehicles from the era.

It all takes place on the weekend of May 17 and 18 and period dress is welcome.

For more information, call 01580 765155 or visit www.ksr.org.uk.

TOP COP: Gary Beautridge's leadership has cleaned up two housing estates

He said there were advantages taking on such a big job because he was able to come in and take a fresh look at the situation.

"We restructured our approach to investigating crime and how we responded to incidents. It gave me a chance to sit down with partners and work out how we work together," he said.

Mr Beautridge praised the support received from other organisations, including Gravesend council and Dartford Borough Council.

An operation to make life a misery for drug dealers has seen assets stripped from pushers, with just under £900,000 seized, he said. His officers have also seized drugs – including heroin, cocaine and ecstasy – worth £1.25 million since June last year.

And as well as arresting and prosecuting where possible, a further 460 people have been offered drug treatment programmes.

"I wouldn't say north Kent is riddled with drugs any more than other areas, but we are taking an innovative approach."

"We offer people an alternative if they are on drugs, as well as launching a series of enforcement campaigns," he said.

This has been Mr Beautridge's final assignment for Kent Police. This is his last year in the post and he is taking early retirement.

He leaves a staff with hugely boosted morale – the area used to have the worse staff sickness rate in the county and now has the best.

"We have exceptional staff here. Their bravery and professionalism have been humbling," he said.

Kent billionaire's irresistible rise

By PHIL REILLY

phil.reilly@kosmedia.co.uk

AN INSURANCE mogul based in Kent was one of the highest climbers in this year's Sunday Times Rich List.

Peter Cullum, 57, is the county's only billionaire and by far the richest man in Kent.

He founded the Maidstone-based Towergate Partnership in 1997 and little over a decade later is now worth £1.7 billion.

Despite his vast fortune he is only the joint 40th wealthiest person in the UK, up from 106th in 2007, but still far behind steel giant Lakshmi Mittal, who tops the list with an estimated £27.7bn.

The next richest Kent residents are the De Haan brothers, Roger and Peter. The pair sold their interests in Saga for £1.35bn in 2004 and Roger has invested much of his fortune in the regeneration of his hometown, Folkestone.

They are now worth an estimated £850m, earning them 89th place on the rich list.

Local names

There are no other Kent residents anywhere near the top 100, but there are still many local names in the top 1,000.

Frank Brake and family, who owned food company Brake Bros until it was floated on the stock market in 1986, are in 292nd place with an estimated £280m.

Guy Hands, owner of public equity group Terra Firma, and his wife Julia are named in 325th place with £250m. Last year, Terra Firma bought music group EMI, home to artists such as Sir Paul McCartney, Kylie Minogue and Coldplay.

Guy and Julia Hands are not the only ones to profit from EMI, with Coldplay bassist and former Canterbury schoolboy Guy Berryman listed as one of the country's richest young people. He is worth an estimated £30m.

Property tycoons Judith and Fergus Wilson, whose new venture is to build a chain of dental surgeries, are in joint 453th place with Kevin Stanford, co-founder of Maidstone-based fashion chain Karen Millen. They are worth around £180m.

Gordon Bonnyman, who runs private equity firm Charterhouse Capital, is in joint 564th place with an estimated £140m – the same amount as musicians Ringo Starr, Eric Clapton and Phil Collins. Kent's wealthiest musical former resident, David Bowie, is 644th with his £120m fortune. Elsewhere in the top 1,000 are venture capitalist Jon Moulton (581st, £135m), former Saga finance

Survivors star now writes her own scripts

FROM cult hit to pulpit, the Reverend Lorna Cleveland has certainly enjoyed a varied career.

Mrs Cleveland, known as Dickie, is an associate priest of the United Wye Benefice. But back in the 70s she was a star of television drama Survivors, which still has a large cult following.

"I'm quite astonished at the interest," she said. "I went to a convention in Birmingham recently and the fans thrust photographs under my nose saying they loved what I did in episode something or other, when I couldn't remember it."

Born in England, she was sent to live with relatives in Ireland for a while as a baby to escape the Second World War. Her family went to the US several times during the war as her father was in the RAF and she attended university there, before enrolling at RADA in 1960.

Her first job was appearing in the Broadway play Luther opposite Albert Finney and she worked on the stage in America for 10 years.

She moved to Egerton in Kent following her marriage to an Englishman in 1971, with whom she had a daughter, Tiffeny.

In the mid 70s Mrs Cleveland landed the role (under her maiden name Lewis) of Pet Simpson in the second series of Survivors, a BBC drama about the aftermath of a devastating plague.

"It's an idea that still interests people as the generations go by," she said. "I found the first series a bit scary, but the part I played wasn't scary because my role was to try and hold people together. I looked after the babies and milked the cows."

When she separated from her first husband, Mrs Cleveland gave up acting to bring up Tiffeny. Her second husband Paul, whom she first met at university, worked for ABC and it was his appointment as bureau chief in Rome that led to her change of career.

She noticed an advert for a theology course and this led to her becoming a lay reader with the Church of England when they returned home two years later. Driven by a desire to get to know parishioners better, Mrs Cleveland decided to become ordained.

After initially being turned down for training, she and her husband moved to North Carolina for two years following his retirement in 1997. After they moved back to Wye, she was ordained in 2002 by then Archbishop of Canterbury Dr George Carey and made a priest the following year by the current archbishop, Dr Rowan Williams.

Mrs Cleveland, 68, has performed for a local fundraising event and believes her actress training has been useful in her new career.

"No matter what you do to begin with, you might recognise what God wants you to do," she said. "As an actress I was interested in people and life. I learned to speak well and project myself, which is useful when I preach. But back then someone else was writing the scripts."

Improving travelling in Kent

Your one-stop guide to information and advice on travelling

Think bike!

As the weather starts to warm up and the evenings are lighter for longer, the number of motorbikes on our roads increases. That's why Kent Highway Services, along with Kent Police and other road safety partners, are about to begin a summer motorcycling road safety campaign to reduce deaths and serious injuries on our county's roads.

Did you know that only one in 100 road users is a motorcyclist, but a quarter of all serious road collisions involve riders? Did you also know that June is the worst month for motorbike collisions, followed by August?

The summer campaign aims to educate both bikers and motorists, so that bikers can enjoy their bikes and go home safely at the end of the day.

We'll be visiting major motorcycling events, along with Kent Police, to talk to riders and offer help and advice, and we're encouraging all riders to log on to www.ridewithattitude.com – a website that is written by bikers for bikers in Kent and Medway.

Kent Police will also be targeting speeding riders on roads where motorcyclists have been killed or injured in the past and at sites associated with anti-social or dangerous riding.

If you're a motorist, you can help the campaign by being more aware of bikers on the road. Motorcyclists are about 50 times more likely to be killed or seriously injured in a road collision per kilometre than a car or van driver and one of the main reasons for collisions is motorists looking but failing to 'see' riders.

For more information about our work on road safety, you can contact us on 08458 247 800 or visit the website at www.kent.gov.uk/highways

You see the sign, but where's the camera?

Kent Highway Services is part of the Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership, and one of the most common questions that motorists ask is 'why are there black and white camera signs along the road but no safety cameras?'

The answer to that is simple – where you see the camera signs but there is no fixed camera, it means it is a mobile camera site.

The partnership has seven mobile safety camera vans that have been in operation since the partnership formed in 2002. The vans operate at the same locations, which is why the signs are put up, but the vans alternate which day and the amount of time spent at each location.

The mobile safety camera vans are an important tool for keeping our roads safe, because they encourage drivers to reduce their speed for the whole distance covered by the signs. In the same way, mobile cameras are used to 'back up' fixed camera sites because they deter motorists from slowing down to pass the camera and then speeding up again. The mobile camera can also photograph vehicles travelling in both directions.

However, the mobile camera sites are not a secret. Did you know that, every Tuesday, the mobile camera locations for the following week are sent to all local media and placed on the partnership's website at www.kmscp.org.

We want to give you every opportunity to slow down, so you can avoid a £60 fine and three points on your licence and, more importantly, so we can make our roads safer.

On the buses!

If you're not a regular bus user and need some help planning your journey, did you know that traveline can help you?

Traveline is a single national telephone number that gives you access to local bus service times and bus journey planning information in your area. To use traveline all you need to do is call 0871 200 22 33 to be put through to regional travel advisers who can answer any questions you have about local and longer distance bus services from where you live.

The service is proving to be a big hit too – the South East region handled over 280,000 calls during the last twelve months with 60,000 of these coming from the Kent area alone. A recent survey was carried out to assess the performance of the service and the results showed very high user satisfaction rates and an increase in repeat callers from Kent.

Across the South East region, over 83% of users were very or extremely satisfied with the service, 95% of people would definitely use the service again and 96% of people would recommend the service to a friend or family member.

More importantly, 83% of the calls from Kent actually translated into bus journeys on the county's network of local and longer distance bus services. That's good news for the environment because it means fewer cars on the road and it could mean more money in your pocket too – especially with some of the regular traveller ticket deals that are available and the new national free off-peak travel pass for OAPs.

Kent Highway Services supports local subsidised bus services throughout the county to make sure that a comprehensive network of local bus services is provided for both residents and visitors in Kent. So, why not let the bus do the hard work and enjoy your journeys around Kent – you can find out everything you need to know about your route by calling traveline on 0871 200 22 33 or check online at www.traveline.info

Have you seen a pothole?

If so, please report it to Kent Highway Services on 08458 247 800

CASSAVA: The drought-resistant plant will be used to help break the cycle of extreme poverty in African countries

Plants form a network

A UNIVERSITY is leading an initiative to boost the incomes of small-scale African farmers.

The project, which will work in partnerships with organisations in Ghana, Nigerian, Uganda, Tanzania and Malawi, has been backed by a £6.7 million grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

The world's third richest man and his wife use the foundation to improve people's health and help lift themselves out of poverty.

As part of the University of Greenwich at Medway project, more than 90,000 farmers will be linked to national and international markets by turning their main crop, cassava, into processed flour, which can then be sold at a premium price.

Cassava is a shrubby tropical plant, produced mainly by women in Africa, which is grown for its starch-containing roots.

Medway-based Professor Andrew Westby, project director of the project Cassava Adding Value for Africa (CAVA), said: "Around 300 million people in sub-Saharan Africa, many in rural areas, live on terribly low incomes.

"But cassava has the potential to significantly reduce their poverty. We expect that by connecting farmers to new markets we can help them increase their incomes and change their lives."

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

Each household involved in the project is expected to earn an additional £97 a year by 2012 – they currently live on less than a dollar (51p) a day.

Cassava is drought resistant and can be planted on poor soils growing well without fertilisers or pesticides.

Dr Lateef Sanni from the University of Agriculture in Abeokuta is leading the project in Nigeria.

He said: "Basic food prices in Nigeria and other Africa countries have rocketed in the past 12 months, squeezing the household budgets of many consumers.

"Partially replacing wheat flour with cassava flour is a win-win intervention, which will benefit both consumers and the local farming households who produce it."

Small and medium scale companies in the private sector in the African countries will be supported as they will play a key role in the supply chain – buying the dried cassava from farmers and turning it into flour.

Our campaign given Government support

By ED HILL

ed.hill@kosmedia.co.uk

THE PRIME Minister has backed a KOS Media campaign to crackdown on benefit cheats.

Gordon Brown praised the Your Money, Your Loss! campaign, which is running in Yourashford newspaper. He urged readers to keep up the good work.

The country's leader said: "We now have one million fewer people on out-of-work benefits than in 1997. But we need to go further now in training every person still on benefits for the jobs that are available, and working with employers to provide more job opportunities for them. But in return for these new opportunities, there will be new responsibilities.

"Everyone who can work must be available for work, and we will not tolerate people who are cheating the welfare system and taking money away from people who really need it.

"That is why I congratulate Yourashford on its campaign to root out the benefit cheats."

Since we launched the campaign – in conjunction with Ashford council – calls to the fraud hotline have rocketed with dozens of new investigations under way.

Its aim is to stop those leaching from the public purse in a bid to reclaim the cash that could – and should – go to community projects to benefit everyone.

Last week the council secured a conviction for the largest ever amount of fraudulently received benefit cash. Ivan Baldock, a builder, from Mersham had claimed more than £25,000 in council tax and housing benefits despite earning nearly £50,000 a year.

Ashford magistrates handed the 47-year-old a six month suspended prison sentence and 250 hours of unpaid community work. He was also ordered to pay back the sum he fraudulently claimed, plus £600 costs.

Chief executive fiasco cost us over £320,000 to be resolved

By IAN READ

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

SWALE council spent at least £320,000 to get rid of the chief executive whose face did not fit, it has been revealed.

For the last 16 months Mark Bilsborough, 48, has been at home on full pay from his £100,000-a-year job after a rebellion among staff.

He was appointed in January 2006 to modernise the council's working procedures. But 10 months later, while he was on holiday, 11 senior council officials complained about his style of management. All claimed they felt 'bullied' by the new man.

Mr Bilsborough was put on gardening leave in December 2006 and a further 48 complaints were made against him. He was sacked last Thursday and given a £30,000 pay off.

Mr Bilsborough this week spoke in his own defence at a special meeting called to settle the dispute.

Councillors had voted 31-11 to sack Mr Bilsborough from the job.

The meeting was private but our sister paper, YoursWale, has seen a copy of the disciplinary report.

One councillor, who asked not to be named, said: "He vehemently defended himself. He reminded councillors that he had been brought in to streamline the council and was only carrying out its wishes."

A report into the whole 16-month disciplinary process was prepared by eminent employment lawyer John Bowers QC.

The report said that within days of Mr Bilsborough's appointment his colleagues - three of whom had applied for his job - ganged up on him to ensure he could not work effectively. But the QC ruled Mr Bilsborough had not helped himself because he had sworn at staff to get his own way and frequently by-passed senior officers to ensure his will prevailed.

The QC found 28 of the charges against the council chief proved.

Mr Bowers said: "I recognise Mr Bilsborough is talented and has some charisma and would do well in a different environment.

"Relationships have effectively broken down to a point where I think they cannot be repaired and that is primarily by reason of Mr Bilsborough's conduct."

Mr Bilsborough was brought in from the Government Office for the South East and had never worked for a council before. Many of his colleagues had worked for Swale for more than ten years and feared being axed themselves.

Mr Bilsborough told the hearing he was frustrated by not being able to get on with his life for the last 16 months.

Council leader Andrew Bowles defended the process, saying: "The only lesson we can learn is to be careful about selecting staff, although we did use a top firm of recruitment specialists and took up all references.

"I'm pleased that John Bowers QC endorsed the actions of Swale council."

Mr Bilsborough was unavailable for comment but is understood to be contemplating legal action against the council.

SACKED: Mark Bilsborough had been on long term gardening leave from the council

Landmark named pier of the year

DEAL Pier has been named the UK's Pier of the Year.

The east Kent landmark beat competition from 23 other piers to win the coveted title.

It was chosen by a poll of more than 600 members of the National Piers Society.

The structure was unveiled by the Duke of Edinburgh in 1957 and is currently undergoing improvement work by Dover District Council, including the building of a new bar/café.

Cllr Nigel Collor, the council's cabinet member for access and property management, said: "This further demonstrates the importance of this major asset to the area, and comes as we start work on exciting improvements to Deal Pier, moving forward for an exciting future, and making sure we take full advantage of the potential that makes the pier so attractive to visitors and local people."

MANY sons find themselves following in their father's footsteps, but there can be very few for whom doing so involves working closely with the Royal Family.

Toby Ward's late father John was a respected artist who was widely credited with teaching Prince Charles to paint when they visited Venice together in 1985.

reopening of St Martin-in-the-Fields Church in London.

He is now preparing to exhibit some of his own work alongside his father's at Canterbury Cathedral.

The exhibition, entitled Houses of God, brings together more than 150 paintings by a range of artists to raise funds for the Save Canterbury Cathedral campaign.

Mr Ward, who has also painted the Duke of Edinburgh and the Queen, said the two Royals share an enthusiasm for art.

He said: "Prince Charles is very nice to be with, very interested and enthusiastic. He is brave enough to go and put his work on the wall and let people look at it.

"It takes a bit of courage if you are not a full-time painter.

"The Duke of Edinburgh is great – I really enjoyed painting him. He is also very enthusiastic about painting and sculpture and a very lovely man full stop."

He said Prince Charles got on very well with his late father and kept in touch often.

He claimed not to have been influenced by his father's work until he was already an established artist in his own right, but it is clear the artistic bent runs through the family.

His two sisters, Celia and Charlotte, are both artists and the latter is also contributing work towards the exhibition.

Mr Ward grew up in the village of Bilting near Canterbury, and was in thrall to the cathedral.

He walked through its grounds every day as a schoolboy at the King's School.

"It is a fabulous building," he added. "Once you have been around the world once you realise there just aren't any places like it. I can count the buildings that equal it in quality and style and skill on the fingers of one hand."

The paintings Mr Ward is contributing to the exhibition are not of the cathedral, but of St Martin-in-the-Fields and his own parish church of St Dunstan's in Cranbrook.

A collection of his work can also be viewed at the Catto Gallery in Hampstead, London.

Houses of God on show at cathedral

WORK by the late John Ward will go on display this month at an exhibition featuring paintings of religious houses from across the world.

The Houses of God show, at Canterbury Cathedral, will also feature work by Mr Ward's children, Toby and Charlotte Ward and others including John Doyle, David Arbus and Hubert Pragnell.

Organisers say the show will celebrate the historic splendours of Venice and the tranquil beauty of the parish church.

The Very Reverend Robert Willis, Dean of Canterbury, said: "Many of the finest buildings in the world have been inspired by the desire to honour that which is divine.

"It is an inspiration which seems to belong to every faith and certainly our great Christian cathedrals have been created by the burning desire of whole communities of skilled workers to honour God."

The exhibition will be supported by public speaking events with TV historian Dr David Starkey and the actor Sir Donald Sinden.

Some works will be for sale. All proceeds will go to the Save Canterbury Cathedral appeal. The exhibition runs from May 24 to June 14.

John Ward, who was regarded as a devoted Man of Kent, died on June 14, 2007.

PRIVATE equity firm Terra Firma, run by Sevenoaks millionaire Guy Hands, is facing additional charges on top of the around £4 billion it paid for the EMI music empire. According to City reports it is facing a shortfall of up to £170 million in EMI's pension scheme. There was no official reaction from Terra Firma, but insiders say the figure is probably less than £50m, with around £10m a year being paid by the firm. The matter has gone to the Pensions Regulator to sort out.

KENT International Airport is undertaking a major public survey to measure the demand for the airport near Ramsgate.

The site, which is currently able to handle 800,000 passengers a year, is already home to one of the UK's longest runways capable of handling all commercial aircraft types.

The survey is being run with KOS Media's www.kentnews.co.uk and all those taking part stand a chance of winning a free holiday in Majorca.

Kent Escapes is offering flights, transfers and half-board accommodation for two adults.

Matt Clarke, chief executive of Kent International Airport, said he is confident the results of the survey will back up their own research showing increased demand for flights from the Manston site.

He said: "This is an opportunity for the Kent public to let us know how they would like to use the airport in the future and in particular the places they would want to fly to, the frequency of their air travel and how much they currently spend on travel."

Well placed

The survey coincides with reports that BAA's ownership of seven UK airports, "may not be serving well the interests of either airlines or passengers", according to the findings of the Competition Commission.

The final report, due to be published in August, could force Spanish-owned BAA to sell one or more of its airports.

It was given ownership of Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted more than two decades ago to make sure there would be enough airport capacity in the South East.

According to the commission, there is still a shortage of capacity.

Mr Clarke agreed, and argued that Manston was ready-made to offer the extra space needed.

He added: "The lack of runway capacity in the South East is often raised as a potential restriction to the economic growth of the region."

"At Kent International Airport we already have a runway that is well placed to serve passenger and freight airlines - Kent's Airport is ready to go right now and already hosting daily 747 flights."

"We are currently undertaking a master-planning exercise to work with the community to map out the future of our airport."

"It is becoming very clear that Kent International Airport will play a significant part in the South East's future network of airports which will directly benefit the district and county's economies creating thousands of new jobs."

Hospital on the crest of a wave

THE naval history of Medway Maritime Hospital will be celebrated at a special event after the NHS trust was awarded 'foundation' status.

Members of the Old Royal Naval Medical Branch Ratings and Sick Berth Association have been invited to the event to reminisce about the hospital's past.

Reverend Alec Cheyney, coordinator for the association, said: "The association's members, who will be travelling to Medway from all over the UK, are looking forward to visiting the hospital."

"Many worked at the hospital as sick berth attendants and haven't been back to Chatham for 50 to 60 years."

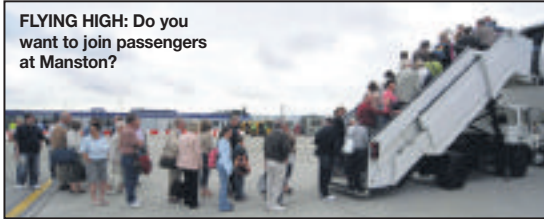

The hospital was opened in 1905 by King Edward VII and cost £800,000. Its main corridor was 1,000 ft long. The NHS bought the building from the Navy in 1961.

Surgeon Rear Admiral Philip Raffaelli, the current Royal Naval Medical Director, is joining the trust's chief executive Andrew Horne and chairman Vernon Hull at the event on Saturday.

The hospital was awarded 'foundation' status at the start of the month. It is still part of the NHS but is run locally.

Sailor hit police boat

A BOAT owner has been fined £500 for speeding while drunk on the Medway Navigation during a summer river festival, the Environment Agency said.

Dan Casson, of Hollingworth Road in Maidstone, was found guilty of breaking the speed limit on the stretch of water between Allington Lock near Maidstone and the Leigh Barrier at Tonbridge by 15 knots.

Maidstone Magistrates court heard how the "reckless" boat owner collided with a police boat before continuing to travel towards Allington after the incident on 28 July at 11pm last year.

Four police officers from the Kent Police Marine Unit were patrolling the River Medway as part of the Maidstone River Festival at the time of incident.

Casson's boat, which did not have any navigation lights on, hit the officers' boat near the Dragon's Leisure Centre in Maidstone and sped off.

He was also ordered to pay £190 in court costs and a £15 victim charge by magistrates last Tuesday.

the pivotal 1940 confrontation.

Yet the only tribute to the former air chief, who died at the age of 82 in 1975, is a road named after him near Biggin Hill Airport, Keith Park Crescent, and one at Uxbridge where he was based during the Battle of Britain.

Lord Tedder, Chief of the Air Staff after the war, said of Sir Keith in 1947: "If ever any one man won the battle of Britain, he did."

"I don't believe it is recognised how much this one man, with his leadership, his calm judgement and his skill, did to save not only this country, but the world."

This week, veterans gave their backing to a campaign for a statue of Sir Keith to be erected on the fourth plinth at Trafalgar Square during an event at Biggin Hill Airport, a key Battle of Britain airbase.

Speaking just before the Hurricane he piloted during the battle did a fly-past at the airport on Tuesday, Wing Commander Bob Foster, 87, paid tribute to Sir Keith.

Wing Cdr Foster, who was based at Croydon during the battle with No 605 (County of Warwick) Squadron, said: "We know that Lord Dowding [air commander-in-chief of Fighter Command 1936 to November, 1940] was the great strategy man.

"But when it came to the crunch, it was 11 Group... commanded by Keith Park, who bore the brunt of the campaign and it was his tactical work during the battle that probably stopped the Germans from coming through to London time and time again."

Wing Cdr Foster, originally a RAF volunteer reserve airman, was called up when war broke out in 1939. He said he flew about 60 to 70 times in a two-month period during the Battle of Britain and notched up two confirmed and two probable enemy kills.

He said the wider significance of the battle was only realised later.

"In retrospect of course, we now realise how important it was. Had we not won, for want of another word, then goodness knows what would have happened."

Flight Lieutenant Owen Burns, 92, from London, was a 23-year-old gunner in a Blenheim light bomber during the Battle of Britain.

He said the statue of Sir Keith would be a worthier addition to the fourth plinth than some previous works that have stood there.

"Number four is used by all sorts of people to do mad things. They've never agreed to the air force having it, but why shouldn't we?"

Defended

Built in 1841, the fourth plinth, in the north-west corner of Trafalgar Square, was originally meant for a statue of William IV, but it never materialised because of a lack of funding.

A nude statue showing disabled artist Alison Lapper when she was heavily pregnant was temporarily put there in 2005 and a coloured glass model of a 21-storey building was installed last year.

Sir Keith's great, great niece, Leigh Park, 30, from London, said: "The RAF isn't currently represented in the square and it would be great to have a representative from each arm of our military forces.

"My great uncle Keith would then not only be in sight of New Zealand House, but firmly planted in the square that commemorates military heroes - a square he successfully defended, along with London, the South East and the UK as a whole, from a Nazi invasion."

Campaign leader Terry Smith, chief executive of City broking firm Tullett Prebon plc, has said he will pay the £100,000 cost of the statue, which would be 18ft high.

Sir Keith was portrayed by Cliftonville-born actor Trevor Howard in the classic 1969 film Battle of Britain, which starred Laurence Olivier as Dowding.

Biker safety blitz aims to cut carnage

A QUARTER of all road accidents involve motorcyclists, according to Kent Police who have launched a campaign to reduce biker deaths.

The education and enforcement initiative is part of a Safer Summer campaign.

Inspector Alex Jones said: "We want to work with motorcyclists to ensure they can enjoy riding their bikes safely all year round."

"This is not about spoiling their fun and fining them for speeding."

"It is about keeping them and other road users alive and making sure their families grow up with a husband, partner, father, brother or uncle."

"In a concerted push to reduce the number of riders who are killed or hurt, and the trauma their family and friends suffer, Kent Police and our road safety partners will pool their expertise and resources in an effort to reduce casualties."

"We will educate, enforce the law and talk to motorcyclists at key events. We will be giving advice that could save their lives."

'God is disappointed' with Williams' failure to defend gay members of the clergy

By PHIL REILLY

phil.reilly@kosmedia.co.uk

THE Archbishop of Canterbury "will have to answer to God" for not defending homosexuals in the Church, according to its first openly gay bishop.

Gene Robinson, the American Bishop of New Hampshire, has spoken of his – and God's – disappointment that Dr Rowan Williams has not done more to stand up to critics of homosexuality within the Anglican Communion.

The issue of homosexuality has been hugely divisive in the Church ever since Bishop Robinson was ordained in 2003.

Dr Williams has been desperately trying to avoid what could become the biggest schism in the Church's history, with many conservative leaders threatening to pull out of the Anglican Communion.

Among the critics is Peter Akinola, the Archbishop of Nigeria, who has likened homosexuality to bestiality and slavery.

Speaking to the BBC's Hardtalk programme, Bishop Robinson questioned

THREATENED: Bishop Gene Robinson

why Dr Williams had not confronted the hardliners in the Church.

He said: "You would have to ask him that – and I think he will have to answer to God about that. I believe [Williams'] unwillingness to confront Peter Akinola and others like him who've made statements that I think any reasonable person would find over the edge – I believe God is very disappointed in that."

He described language used to describe gays and lesbians by the American religious right as "treating them – treating us – as if we are subhuman", and said that he had received threats.

He added: "The rhetoric of those who would gladly decide themselves as anti-gay certainly creates an atmosphere in which a person who might contemplate violence would feel more justified."

The bishop has previously stated that he intends to attend this summer's Lambeth Conference, to be hosted by Dr Williams at the University of Kent in Canterbury, despite not being invited.

He has been in the UK to promote his new book, In the Eye of the Storm.

A spokesman for Lambeth Palace declined to comment.

Guides' goodbye

THE leader of Canterbury's Girlguides has retired after seven years in the job.

Wendy Dyer, who was the Division Commissioner for Canterbury, celebrated with a party at the Sturry Social Centre last Saturday.

Around 60 people attended and Mrs Dyer was presented with an Ambassador of Girlguiding badge. The event was also a thank you for Caroline Piper, who stood down as Division Treasurer.

Anyone interested in joining the Canterbury Girlguides should call 0800 1695901.

Fraud allegations

KENT Police have accused a Frenchman of a series of fraud-related crimes.

Officers from the specialist operations directorate charged Abdelhamid Khenfri with 13 offences.

The 51-year-old is from Sartrouville, France.

He faces charges of: ten counts of possessing a counterfeit credit card, possession of a data card reader, possession of a laptop computer for use in connection with fraud, and possession of handwritten notes of credit card numbers.

He is due to appear at Canterbury Crown Court on May 12, 2008.

Police said the charges related to incidents in the UK and France between 2001 and 2008.

Reporter is freed

A JOURNALIST from Kent who was kidnapped while working for a USTV network in Iraq has been released.

Richard Butler, 48, was held for more than two months after being seized by AK47-wielding militiamen in Basra.

Mr Butler, a former national newspaper reporter, lives with his family in France.

Call for Eurostar train cuts rethink

By ED HILL

ed.hill@kosmedia.co.uk

A SENIOR Tory MP has repeated calls for Eurostar to reconsider its position on Ashford International station as it prepares a major review of its services.

The company intends to conduct a detailed study into its existing timetable during May – an exercise which will compare data between the Ashford station and the new Ebbsfleet station.

Eurostar's decision to cut international services from Ashford caused a huge outcry.

Damian Green, the MP for Ashford, said: "The fact remains Ashford has much better domestic rail links than Ebbsfleet. That is going to be the case for decades to come."

Recent figures from Eurostar reveal passenger numbers increased by 21 per cent in the first quarter of 2008.

The future review is seen as a chance for the operator to change its mind. As yet there are no figures relating to the figures for stations including St Pancras, Ebbsfleet and Ashford.

Mr Green said: "Even now, months after the changes I still receive many complaints about the services being changed from Ashford."

"They come from all over the region, not

ALL CHANGE: There are hopes a review will see more trains stopping at Ashford International just the town itself, saying this decision is ridiculous."

He added: "For the sake of one peak-hour train from Ashford to Brussels I believe Eurostar has done a lot of damage."

"I think we need to try and get back to trying to persuade them to change their minds but at this moment I think that it is too early to say."

A Eurostar spokesman said the new passenger figures were not broken down to show how many passengers used each station. Those figures would not be available until a review had been completed in late spring or early summer.

He said: "At this moment in time we are happy with the changes that we have made."

FRAUGHT: Catherine Shorter

By JENNA PUDELEK

jenna.pudelek@kosmedia.co.uk

CATHERINE Shorter of Kent was the extravagant and beautiful wife of Sir Robert Walpole, Britain's first Prime Minister.

Set in the 18th century, the tragic story of how a passionate love match ended in betrayal and mental illness is included in the latest book exploring her husband's life.

The Great Man, Sir Robert Walpole: Scoundrel, Genius and Britain's First Prime Minister by Edward Pearce, a former political journalist, has now been published in paperback.

Lady Walpole was the daughter of Sir John Shorter, a former Mayor of London, and a wealthy merchant from Kent. She married Walpole in 1700.

Mr Pearce said: "The main point about her is that she was a beautiful woman and seems to have been a bit of a Princess Diana of her time.

"She was excitable and slightly fraught."

It was beautiful romance for a while, said Mr Pearce, until problems began to develop.

Nothing is known about Lady Walpole's political opinions, said the author, who speculated that as her husband grew increasingly more powerful her refusal to get involved and lack of interest in politics pushed them apart.

They were profligate spenders; a letter from John Wrott, Walpole's steward, revealed the couple's high living while Walpole was a young MP.

The letter warned Walpole that money is needed for "new gowns and various silks".

Mr Pearce describes Walpole as a "wonderfully corrupt and a deeply dishonest man" both in his political and personal life.

He had many mistresses although, said Mr Pearce, historical sources do not reveal their names.

Walpole, a Whig, served during the reigns of George I and George II. His control over King, Parliament and Government is generally regarded as lasting between 1721 and 1742.

Prime ministerial marriage which ended in tragedy

However, he was briefly locked up in the Tower of London by the Tories when they grabbed power after the death of George I.

Mr Pearce said Walpole's affairs probably came after the couple had fallen out rather than causing the marriage to break down.

Lady Walpole was living in a whirl of high society parties and having a great time.

It is not known if she had affairs but as Mr Pearce noted "she would have had reason to".

As Prime Minister, Walpole fell in love with Maria Skerrett but he could not marry her as long as Catherine was alive.

"We just do not know whether the carrying on contributed to her insanity," Mr Pearce said.

But as the marriage declined and her husband's power grew Lady Walpole's mental health worsened.

She died in 1736 and Walpole immediately married his mistress who quickly fell pregnant.

The second Lady Walpole then died only months later during a stillbirth.

"Walpole was consumed by grief," Mr Pearce said.

"He was as broken up by this as anything else. It was love rather than casual sex."

Despite Walpole's frivolous behaviour with his own money, he is credited with setting a stable and growing economy as well as keeping the country out of war for 20 years.

In the final analysis, Mr Pearce said: "He was a cold-hearted brute who did not really care for anyone without influence.

"He was selfish but outstandingly able and probably as good a person to have in the early days of Government than any other."

COMMENT

Economy will still be the issue

BUOYED by their local election triumphs across the land, some Conservatives are inevitably starting to look to the next general election.

And why not? After more than a decade in the political wilderness the Tories have had their patience tested and are now beginning to really believe their time has come.

Gordon Brown is bruised and beaten, with voters delivering him not so much a bloody nose as a broken one.

The last few months have pushed him from one disaster to another, from lost data discs to Northern Rock and the fumbling over the 10p tax rate, and it is hard to see how he can recover.

Even the Liberal Democrats got more votes on Thursday.

There is now talk of the Tories winning every constituency in Kent, the sort of comprehensive victory that would no doubt see David Cameron strutting into 10 Downing Street.

They would be wise not to be so cocksure. There have been false dawns before.

In 2004, at the height of Tony Blair's troubles and the furor over the lack of WMDs in Iraq, Labour got pummelled at the polls only to win again in the 2005 general election.

Many of the voters on Thursday had local matters in their mind when they voted and this should not necessarily be interpreted as an endorsement of Mr Cameron.

What is more, the defining issue of the next year or two is likely to be the economy. Unless the Tories can convince people that they have the policies and shrewdness to navigate such stormy seas many could reluctantly put their trust back in the Iron Chancellor.

OPINION: School parental choice

IS SCHOOL parental choice a myth? Both Labour and the Conservatives have paid lip service to the idea of parental choice in selecting schools for our children, but how is it working in practice?

In Kent, there has been a fall from 80 to 70 per cent of children over the past two years being offered their first choice secondary school, the corresponding drop in primary schools being from 94 to 89 per cent.

The proportion of infants offered no school of their choice has nearly doubled in the same period, with many of these 458 four-year-olds now facing long journeys to school because their parents have the misfortune to live in rural areas.

What is to blame for this, and what can be done? Certainly we are at the peak of secondary school admissions with numbers forecast to fall by 10 per cent in the next six years, so this may be a temporary blip.

But that doesn't make it any less painful for children living in Sittingbourne being offered a school in south Maidstone; or those from Westerham offered a grammar place in Sittingbourne; or pupils in Gravesend who have passed the 11-plus being offered a non-selective school out of the borough. Government keeps pressure on local authorities to eliminate empty spaces in schools, currently about eight per cent in Kent secondaries, similar to neighbouring counties. However, these spaces are concentrated in just 10 schools, each with more than 25 per cent surplus spaces.

With more pupils being denied their first choice, it's time for action, says PETER READ

The pressure is greatest in west Kent; none of the 33 most westerly Kent schools have any space after allocation on March 3, although this is already changing as some parents decline places at schools they have been allocated.

Meanwhile, Thanet is forecast to have 20 per cent spare capacity in a few years.

Kent County Council has attempted to close some smaller primary schools, each time against immense local pressure.

But still 87 Kent primary schools have more than a quarter of their places free. Once again the problems are focused in schools that are in the wrong place or are unpopular for a variety of reasons.

What can be done to solve the difficulties? For 2008 entry, any solution now lies with independent appeal panels, for schools have no power to admit additional children over their planned admission number. Appeals are now being heard, but before admitting additional children panels need to be satisfied that further admissions will not damage the education of those already there.

Some schools will put forward strong cases to resist taking in more children, but I believe in a few cases KCC could be more flexible by offering temporary accommodation in this exceptional year.

Primary school appeals are very difficult to win, as infant class legislation forbids panels approving appeals that take class sizes over 30, except in exceptional circumstances.

In the longer term, the solution comes with identifying pressure points well in advance and building new schools or classrooms to meet demand, before the children arrive.

This is not a solution for grammar schools, as government legislation forbids additional grammar school places being created, so the much-needed

Sevenoaks Grammar School is unlikely to see the light of day, with the Conservatives currently not supporting new grammar schools.

Amid this political infighting, parental choice and quality education for many of our children appears to get lost. The ideal solution is to make all schools high quality so children and parents will support them, but this appears impossible without hard decisions and considerably more priority and resources given to education.

Building Schools for the Future, the biggest investment programme ever in Kent schools, is currently in preparation, with phase one seeing every secondary school in Gravesend and many others along the north Kent coast being completely or substantially rebuilt – but the programme creates no additional spaces.

However, to ensure every school is of high quality so much more needs to be invested to ensure that parental choice becomes a reality for all.

Claims are nonsense

I have just read your article attempting to show discrimination against women as elected members in Kent County Council.

I have never seen such a blatant and unfair attempt to make bricks without straw.

Please consider the following:

There is not an over-supply of applicants for nomination to candidature in any division that I am aware of, and certainly no discrimination on grounds of gender. I have not heard of any woman who wished to be a candidate and was refused because of her sex.

Any woman may put herself forward and will receive the same consideration as a man.

Ms Dean implies there is "ballyhoo" in the council chamber. There is not. Standards of behaviour are high, as befits mature adults.

Ms Harrison says of the male elected members "you can almost feel them itching to pat me on the head and say 'it's alright, dear'."

What is this supposed to mean? Nothing; it's meaningless drivel and you should not attempt use such insubstantial and pointless remarks as evidence of anything except shallow-mindedness.

It is true that some of the men's toilets include marble fittings. This is not so that male superiority can be asserted over women, but because the toilets are Victorian, and badly need updating.

It is true there are relatively few women elected members in County Hall and your article gives no sensible suggestions as to why this should be so.

If you wish to find out, the last people to inquire of are Ms Dean and Ms Harrison, both of whom have political axes to grind. It was unfortunate for you that you could not persuade Conservative Sarah Hohlher to give you a derogatory quote; it may be because she does not feel there is any reason to do so.

What about access?

In spite of all the coverage the proposed lorry park has received, we have not seen any ref-

Politicians are telling us what we already know

First, could my thanks be conveyed to Cllr Michael Snelling, the Conservative leader of Gravesham Borough Council.

Without his snide remarks relating to Lembit Opik MP, the subject of the monstrous development may never have received recognition in your newspaper.

It is an interesting observation that besides a Liberal Democrat MP expressing his negative views on the development, Adam Holloway, the current Conservative MP for Gravesham, has stated the tower looked like a blot on the landscape and the Labour Party were actually engaged in getting people to sign a petition against it last Saturday. Where do politics enter this argument?

As chairman of a block of 46 flats with more than 90 residents, we are directly involved in this proposed development and unanimous agreement by the residents concludes the tower is an abomination.

Residents believe the whole proposal is fraught with distinct probabilities of negatively affecting the present residential area of the town's heritage quarter.

erence to how, or where, the lorries are to leave and regain the M20 in the event of Dover port being closed. All the lorries will have to leave by a new slip road built to the north of the M20 and another slip road onto the motorway also on the northern side, irrespective of whether access from there to the lorry park is under or over the motorway.

Why is it then, that all we see in the newspapers and on television is an area of land south of the M20 which is the proposed site?

Much more land between the motorway and the A20 will be required and this has not been mentioned in public as yet.

The most sensible and cost-effective solution to Operation Stack is surely to use the communication systems already in place by information on overhead gantries, by radio and television, by landline and mobile phone to notify lorries bound for Dover that they should not start their journeys through Kent to the continent until the port is reopened.

Drivers would no doubt prefer to remain at their depots instead of a lorry park or on the M20 with limited facilities.

Protect our rural idyll

Every year I visit friends and family in Kent and enjoy the countryside.

It therefore saddens me to hear that in the quiet backwater of the picturesque village of Aldington there are plans to build a park for a few thousand lorries. While I'm sure there is a need for such a park close to the channel tunnel and Dover ferry it does seem rather unnecessary to locate it in an area of outstanding beauty with unspoilt views over the fabulous wilderness of Romney Marsh.

It has been explained to me that the local ratepayers, who are by and large against the scheme, would be financing the park while the Dover Harbour Board, who would be the real beneficiaries of the scheme and who are willing to finance the park if it were to be built within their boundaries, are being ignored.

I am unaware of the politics behind the scheme but I can only assume the reason to build something that would so obviously scar the environment is due to some people planning to make a lot of money out of it.

Relatively inexpensive farmland will be marked up to become high value building land. A lorry park will attract restaurants, hotels and shops, which in turn will create a need for houses and within a relatively short time a quiet rural backwater will become a noisy congested town. Dover not only has the space needed but also the necessary infrastructure. Its shops would welcome the extra business which would help to regenerate the town. Why is that not being considered?

It seems to me the plan should be to enhance the commercial visibility of Dover with the addition of a fully serviced lorry park rather than to destroy the serenity of the rural idyll in the Garden of England.

*Mark Lecchini

Following our leader

Kent County Council Conservatives are totally in tune with David Cameron's Conservative Party and it was wrong of your article two weeks ago to suggest this might not be the case in the future.

The reason we have to raise money through council tax is simple, this government gives us less money year after year while expecting us to deliver more and more services.

On top of this grants to local government to fund services are being sucked away from the South East to be spent in Labour strongholds in the North East of England.

We've carved out £90m of savings from our budget in three years. If only national government departments could deliver the same.

Conservatives believe in less government, less bureaucracy and lower taxes.

Paul Carter
Leader, Kent County Council

We should give grants

The Government goes on about increasing the number of working class children in university but continues to put up barriers.

At a time when City bonuses increase and MPs enjoy high expense allowances why do we still expect our young to pay for their university education for years after they qualify?

Most of our politicians had the benefit of a grant to pay for their education. Why do they stop others from getting the same benefit?

It is time to restore free university education for our people. The benefit of this will be felt by the whole of society as these youngsters will then be able to bring their complete ability to the service of their communities.

David Hawley, Student Liaison Officer
Medway Trades Union Council, Gillingham

Pensioners will suffer

Following the debacle that was the ending of the 10p tax rate, the Prime Minister announced that the losers would be compensated through, among other things, the Pension Credit system.

Is this the same Pension Credit system the government will cut by 75 per cent in October 2008? At the moment all new Pension Credit awards are backdated for up to 12 months. From October all backdated awards will be restricted to just three months. As most claims are for £25 per week, this effectively means some of the poorest pensioners in Britain will be robbed of around £975 in the first year of their claim.

Once again New Labour robs the poor to pay the rich.

Roy Hollister
Independent Benefits Advice Service, Dartford

Faster safety solution

Reading KCC's weekly information page on what they are doing on our roads made me spill my chardonnay!

"Keeping up to speed" was the headline. How perverse, because in fact, it will be the opposite. Speed limits always go down, it is only the added congestion that goes up.

Instead of promoting the government anti-mobility agenda, KCC would be better off cutting down vegetation at junctions, and having a campaign to promote that residents do the same to their properties, to make their driveway exits more safe.

Engineering firm creates 21st century apprentices

AN INTERNATIONAL engineering firm is teaming up with a Kent college to offer a new programme of apprenticeships.

Billed as 'Traditional apprenticeships for the 21st century', the scheme is run in partnership by Cummins Power Generation and South Kent College.

The company, which has its European base at Manston, near Ramsgate, makes generators that can be used for anything from back-up power supplies at hospitals to stand-alone machines to be used in the desert.

The firm had been training its staff on a day release basis as they worked, but was not satisfied with the results.

The new course will allow trainees to study full-time for a year before joining the company.

Jeannetta Deeney, the company's health, safety and environmental manager, said: "We found what we had been delivered previously wasn't as appropriate to our business as we had hoped. We looked at what was on offer and we made a decision that we wanted to put [our trainees] on a year full-time as opposed to four years doing single days."

The new course will offer a broad range of engineering skills, including mechanical and electrical engineering.

The 'Apprenticeship Plus' scheme will allow students to gain a modern apprenticeship and HNC (Higher National Certificate).

Zeph Norrish, the college's deputy director of technology, said: "Cummins requires apprentices that have a broad range of skills in a variety of engineering disciplines. Cummins is continuing to work with the college to develop the programme and through the recruitment process. The company intends to build on this partnership with successive years' apprentices."

To qualify for the course, students are required to have five GCSEs at grade C or above, including science, English and maths.

There are 10 places available for this year's course. For more information, or to apply, call the college on 01233 655544.

Citröen's 'Touch of Klaus' is no joke

INSIDE

Mercedes' new hard top Page 58

Mazda5 a quality MPV Pages 62-63

CITROËN has always been quirky, but the quintessentially French carmaker has really gone weird this time – it's turned German.

Not only have its designers and engineers looked at what Audi & Co are doing, but their new C5 model is being marketed as a "combination of French flair with Teutonic-like levels of quality, coupled with the highest standards of comfort, innovation and in-car technology".

This has also translated into clever ad lines like "Deutsch Marque", "Smit hot", "A Touch of Klaus" and, for the forthcoming estate model, "Das Boot".

Not an entirely original pitch perhaps, since Kent's own Shepherd Neame brewery has perennially sent up Deutschland with a 'Bottle of Britain' campaign for its Spitfire Ale.

However, from being a joke when it used to make entertaining cars prone to disintegration in an unfunny way, Citroën is having the last laugh.

The new C5 is still quirky – the steering wheel boss remains stationary while the rim rotates – but it is truly good to drive and a far better ownership proposition.

By STEVE LOADER

The newcomer even looks German, though proper inspection reveals Citroën's new chrome 'moustache' across the bonnet rather than Audi's heavy 'goatee'.

But having caught the eye, Citroën has been careful not to disappoint; there really is a Germanic quality about the way the car looks and feels, even though prices start from a distinctly non-Audi £16,995.

Significantly, Citroën has also strayed from using only its famous hydro-pneumatic suspension on bigger models; unlike the previous and rather ugly C5, the new car is available with a conventional steel suspension as well as the trademark air-springing.

Unfortunately, I was unable to try the former since the test car loaned by Wilmoths of Ashford was a more upmarket Exclusive model, fitted with the hydro-pneumatic layout.

For the moment, this is the preferred choice anyway according to Wilmoths' manager John Ives – all five C5s that the site sold in the first couple of weeks had this layout – although he predicted more sales of cheaper models with the conventional layout as people appreciate the new C5's tempting blend of value and style.

I cannot argue with his confidence; the 138bhp 2.0HDI Exclusive Auto I drove is at the top end of the range with its £21,595 price tag.

But it is not hard to look beyond the frills at this level and see the C5's powerful underlying proposition in terms of style, comfort, fit and finish.

Citröen diehards will be happy they can still buy the famous 'feather-bed' suspension, especially as Citroën has tightened its tendency to roll into the bends, if not the rather light steering.

But you can also see how 'Germanic' underpinnings on cheaper versions could win new recruits to the brand in the increasingly competitive family/company car sector.

The latest Mondeo raised the bar last year as Ford looked to take on German marques that have stolen so much of a sector it used to call its own. Now Citroën is taking them on too and, despite the ads, the French are not joking.

Classy SL regenerates

MERCEDES-BENZ simply does not 'do' facelifts, so we now have a 'new generation' of its beefy yet smart folding hardtop SL coupe, launched in 2002.

The SL had been wearing well, but the regeneration works well with the notable addition of twin power bulges on the bonnet and replacement of the triple-louvre grille by a single vane, both mods delivering a lower and more purposeful look evocative of the classic 300 SL 'Gull Wing'.

No doubt mindful of newer rivals such as the Jaguar XK and BMW 6-Series, Mercedes-Benz has not rested there though.

Engines have been fettled to reduce fuel consumption, with the £65,080

SL350 entry model – claiming 70 per cent of SL sales – getting a major re-work.

A test drive confirmed that this has made the most affordable SL even more appealing – the engine is more responsive and revs well to deliver a snappier 0-62mph sprint time of 6.2 seconds, while combined cycle fuel consumption is up from 27.4 to 28.5mpg.

At the other extreme you still have the bonkers AMG versions from an equally mad £102,075, which mutilate the above sprint and fuel consumption figures – but you might feel it is worth it to hear the engines howling and the auto transmission 'blipping' the throttle for you in the down changes.

Maxi majors on comfort

A CHANCE to drive VW's latest Maxi van was an eye-opener about how far vans – the 'poor relation' of the motor industry – have advanced recently.

Not only did it handle tidily, but the cabin would not have disgraced an equivalent car – standard kit includes remote central locking and a cd/radio, but it can be spec'd up with air-con, cruise control, heated front seats and more.

The Caddy Maxi fits between VW's standard Caddy compact and long-running Transporter panel vans and starts at £12,650 ex VAT.

The vehicle I sampled was £14,050 though, with some cash taken by a clever VW Group double-clutch DSG auto gearbox – apparently, the smooth shifting transmission with its sporty manual option is a winner with urban operators and drivers.

Peugeot holdall's glassy replacement

PEUGEOT'S latest SW estate car/people carrier arrives in June.

The 308SW takes over from the impressive 307SW – the MPV that looked normal and you could enjoy driving.

Its replacement carries over and improves upon one the 307SW's biggest selling points too with a 27 per cent larger panoramic glass roof.

The 308SW will command a modest £500 premium over equivalent Peugeot 308 hatchbacks – prices start at £14,395.

New Laguna is no German wannabe

STEVELOADER

MOST mainstream motor manufacturers are striking back at premium marques stealing their bread and butter sales in the middle or 'Mondeo' sector.

Ford itself launched a radically improved Mondeo last year, Mazda has a cracking new '6' out, VW has the classy Passat, Vauxhall launches a stunning Vectra replacement – the Insignia – in October and Citroën says its new C5 is aimed at German marques – see our 'First Drive report' elsewhere.

Maybe Renault knows something the others don't, because its new Laguna is rather out-classed by these other new kids on the block and is more 're-heated' than all-new product.

Newcomer

So, despite road testing a smartly fitted out mid-range 2.0D Dynamique dCi with higher output (150bhp) engine – theoretically on the radar for a typical executive 'user chooser' – I can't see this other newcomer taking the fight to the Germans.

In fact, I reckon the self-styled 'Créateur d'Automobiles' has decided to cede the middle ground to the likes of Audi, BMW and Mercedes-Benz, let alone Ford and Co, and make its stand in supermini territory – its chic Clio being one of the stars of the sector.

RE-HEATED: The new Renault Laguna is unlikely to have the likes of BMW running for cover Renault does pretty well on the MPV front too, having created the type with its Espace and Scenic model series.

A precedent for withdrawal from the Mondeo sector was also set by Renault's partner Nissan, which has not looked back since axing the Primera as well as the smaller Almera in favour of the big-selling Qashqai crossover model.

On top of all this, Renault might have read the runes better than mainstream rivals and realised that the green/global warming/social conscience movement is gathering momentum faster than predicted and buyers may soon abandon large family models altogether.

If 'Le Créateur' is right then its own legacy may be lauded as shrewdly avoiding another major commitment to a doomed sector, having burned its fingers in the now virtually defunct 'mainstream executive' sector with the disastrous Vel Satis and Avant Time models.

With aggressive pricing – and the chance to drive a hard bargain on top – the new Laguna should also hold the line well in a troubled sector.

The styling is less clumsy than the previous car, though possibly less imposing, and the rear end styling of the Sport Tourer (estate) is particularly sharp.

The interior is also typically distinctive and airier than before, even if Renault failed to appreciate that the likes of Ford and Citroën have moved things on in terms of materials.

Boot space is generous and legroom good, though rear headroom may be restrictive and a lack of stowage space was exacerbated on the test car by the sat nav player being in the glovebox; I was even less impressed after finding that system complicated and confusing to use.

On the road, the engine impresses with its willingness and quick take-off and overall frugality – an average of 45mpg should be achievable – but it can be noisy under pressure and motorway refinement is only so-so for this class.

But it is on rural roads that the Laguna lets itself down; the sloppy body control of past models has been sorted, but you hear and feel too much of what is going on as the car tackles our increasingly dreadful country roads.

By all means, keep the Laguna on your shopping list but make sure you get a good deal – it's no German wannabe.

Mazda5

IF YOU fancy being Japan's answer to Italy's Alfa Romeo in terms of sportiness and verve, then making an MPV could kill your ambition.

But Mazda applied its Zoom-Zoom philosophy to the Mazda5 and created an MPV that neither requires apologies from the company or those who buy it.

The car has also just had a modest facelift – acknowledgement perhaps that Mazda got the car about right first time.

Sleek

You have to look particularly hard to see the changes outside, though they include new bumpers and light clusters front and back, revised front grille and a fresh range of alloys, but the car retains its relatively sleek and aerodynamic lines.

For me, that is its unique selling point: if you have to saddle yourself with an MPV – which I believe stands for 'my passengers' vehicle' rather than the official term, Multi-Purpose Vehicle – then this will leave you with some street cred.

And driving it will certainly keep you smiling,

Who says MPVs

QUALITY PACKAGE: The new Mazda5 has an improved interior and the price tag, starting from £14,770, is also reasonable because the '5' moves as well as it looks.

Our mid-range two-litre TS2 petrol test car could certainly be hustled and, despite the higher MPV position, you would quickly forget that you are in a people carrier able to carry – at a pinch – seven people.

The Mazda5 does not pitch and roll like some rivals, but neither is the suspension so sporty that it will irritate you or your passengers.

A typically crisp standard-fit six-speed gearshift and responsive steering is part of the mix – great whether carrying lots of passengers or driving solo.

It means the car might also appeal to couples or small families not needing the extra seats so much, but the cavernous load space to support a sporty lifestyle or carry dogs.

But most buyers want that big cabin, plus versatile extra seating and the Mazda5 is alone in the midi-MPV sector in having two sliding rear side doors, with electric power available on these too as part of a £1,750 luxury pack also bringing xenon headlights and black leather trim.

The wide-opening doors really are a boon and particularly for parents strapping kids in the back, but I have said before that access beyond the middle row of seats into the two compact (kids-only) rearmost seats is rather tight.

A further criticism is the so-called third/centre seat in the middle row – it is so narrow that it is a real emergency reserve and best left in fold down armrest/table mode.

Such minor grumbles apart though, the Mazda5 is a quality package and the recent facelift has further improved the ambience of the interior; it is perhaps still rather staid against jazzier French rivals but this could be a point in its favour for some buyers.

Prices from £14,770 are also reasonable and there are some excellent diesel versions we have tested before, plus a new automatic option.

DEUTSCH MARQUE.

With a sophisticated combination of contemporary design and cutting-edge technology, the new Citroën C5 marries your passion for driving with a logical need to feel protected – your passion for style with the rational demands of the executive saloon. This is a car that will pull at your heartstrings – with the utmost precision.

Peter's empire still expanding

KENT insurance king Peter Cullum has swept aside the world's money problems and gone on a massive takeover spree involving firms with an incredible £900 million-plus in premiums over the last eight months.

Latest acquisition is MacDonald Reid Scott Group, a leading Glasgow-based insurance broking and financial services firm, controlling premiums of £9 million.

But there has been a host of activity since August last year as Mr Cullum, UK Entrepreneur of the Year in 2005 and with an empire based in Maidstone, has snapped up 12 other brokers.

In an exclusive interview with KOS Media, he said: "You could call the present climate mildly hostile in terms of business, but in a perverse way it is an opportunity for us."

"We are very well capitalised and have a war chest for acquisitions, unlike our competitors. Trying to raise reasonable funding for new acquisitions is pretty difficult for them at the moment."

Mr Cullum said he would not have welcomed the current banking squeeze. "It is not good for us or our clients, but we are more than able to make acquisitions of any size."

"We are in very good shape and our acquisition strategy is very robust."

Mr Cullum began his insurance career in 1969 with the Royal Insurance Group. At the age of 21 he became the youngest person to pass the Chartered Insurance Institute fellowship examinations. In 1997 he created the Towergate Underwriting Group.

His latest acquisition was established in 1981 and under the deal its 42 general insurance broker staff have made the move to Towergate and will continue to be led by managing director Bernard Dunn.

Its employee benefits consulting and wealth management side – which Mr Cullum says has "significant growth potential" – under the leadership of managing director Douglas McIntyre, will become part of newly formed Towergate Financial Services.

Mr Cullum also runs Towergate's sister company Cullum Capital Ventures, which itself has further established its presence in the north west by taking over Liverpool-based Ajax Insurance Brokers.

He said MacDonald Reid Scott was "part of Towergate's exciting expansion plans for Scotland where we have strong ambitions".

One of its 12 recent broker acquisitions was Aberdeen-based McAra Associates, with premiums of £5.6 million. Among the other takeovers were Open G1, controlling premiums of £300 million, in September, and Broker Network Ltd (premiums £450 million) in December.

Towergate, which has about 100 offices around the UK, and is based in Towergate House in Staceys Street, is planning to move to Maidstone's Eclipse Park in November. It employs nearly 5,000 staff in the UK and controls premiums in the region of £2.5 billion.

CCV has a yearly turnover of about £75 million and by year end will control about £350 million in premiums, making it one of the top four brokers in the UK.

Takeover deal delight

A TUNBRIDGE Wells-based team from a leading bank has sprung into action to take part in a multi-million pound takeover in the world of technical fasteners, ring and spring products.

Clydesdale Bank played a key role in enabling one of Europe's leading suppliers of technical fasteners, TFC Europe of Heathfield, to acquire Walsall-based Cavalier Fasteners.

The new company will have a combined workforce of more than 65 and turnover in excess of £14 million. The deal was arranged by the bank and a team of advisers from across the region.

Martin Clarke, chief executive of TFC said: "This is a great deal as it will enable us to expand into new markets, notably construction. And it will give Cavalier the financial clout that comes from being part of a bigger organisation. Everybody worked incredibly hard to make it happen."

TFC manufactures and distributes its fixings to more than 3,000 customers across Europe.

Why centre's educational role is not just cricket

By RICHARD PARSONS
Business Publisher

IF YOU are looking at fresh ideas on how to expand the CSR – corporate social responsibility – activity of your business or how to support a valuable learning initiative, one great activity to get involved in is Playing for Success.

Playing for Success (PFS) is a partnership between the Department for Children, Schools and Families, Kent County Council and a host club.

In Kent there are four host clubs: Kent County Cricket Club, Ebbsfleet United FC, Margate FC and Buckmore Park kart track.

The vision behind PFS is to support under-achieving Key Stage 2 and 3 pupils and re-engage reluctant learners by using inspirational role-models and the aura of a big sporting venue to help individual children re-evaluate their self worth and abilities and give them a better chance in life.

The charity works with schools to improve pupils' self esteem, motivation, literacy, numeracy and IT skills. Schools are invited to send those children they feel will gain the greatest benefit.

At Canterbury's St Lawrence ground, the home of cricket in Kent, the county club has worked with PFS to create the Kent Spitfires Study Centre where the

INSPIRING: Exiled cricketer Henry OlongaMAN OF KENT: County professional Matt Walker

Playing for Success curriculum has been run with overwhelming success for more than three years.

In the last year alone more than 300 children have benefited from attending the centre, which has 14 networked desktop computers, laptops, a surround sound system as well as an interactive projector and whiteboard.

Recently installed video conferencing will connect all the centres in Kent, allowing users to talk and learn together. The curriculum inspires the young learners and activities include a range of literacy and numeracy "energisers", as well as opportunities to interview and work with county and international cricketers, and for cricket coaching in the academy nets.

Coming to the study centre really does make a hugely important contribution to the children. The work of the centre was highlighted at a lunch hosted by the PFS team at the St Lawrence ground where an audience from the business world heard from two cricketing greats: Matt Walker, a Kent professional who has his benefit year in 2008; and former Zimbabwean international Henry Olonga, who has defied the Mugabe regime in his home country and lives in exile in the UK.

Both spoke of the importance of the study centre and the value it adds for students. The centre gets great support from the staff and cricketers and would like to further develop ties, particularly with businesses in the county. If you or your colleagues want to work with the Kent Spitfires Study Centre team they would be delighted to tell you more, explain how their partnership packages work and even give you a tour. Get the facts about redundancy

TO QUALIFY as a "redundancy", an employee's dismissal must be "wholly or mainly attributable to" the employer:

Ceasing or intending to cease the business for the purposes of which the employee was employed by it (business closure);

Ceasing or intending to cease the business in the place where the employee is employed (workplace closure);

Having a reduced requirement for employees to carry out work of a particular kind.

Some examples include the re-allocation of duties, a fundamental change in the employee's duties, a change in the kind of work done by the employee, a reorganisation leading to a reduced need for employees or the restructuring of departments or workforce hierarchy.

Redundancy is a potentially fair reason for dismissal of an employee. Employers should be aware though that even if a dismissal is genuinely on grounds of redundancy, whether it is fair or unfair to dismiss for that reason depends normally on the application of the general test of fairness.

Here, issues such as consultation, selection and the offer of alternative employment are key.

Do you want to know more about redundancy?

FRIENDS Jeremy Pickering and James Stewart set up a property investment business as a side interest but now it is booming and has just received a near-£2 million funding package.

Burgate Developments was established in 1997 with the friends holding an equal share and by 2000 both directors began working for the company full-time. Mr Pickering has since left but Mr Stewart remains as director. Now Burgate has linked up with NatWest Bank, which has refinanced its loans on 24 industrial units near Canterbury with a £1.7 million funding package. Burgate buys land, primarily in the Canterbury and Ashford areas, and then negotiates for planning permission before selling on or developing itself. It recently acquired 24 industrial units at Barham, near Canterbury.

Mr Stewart said: "We've seen an extraordinary amount of success and expansion, far beyond what we had initially foreseen."

Protecting against flood risk

MORE than 150,000 homes are in areas at risk of coastal or river flooding in Kent, Sussex, Hampshire and the Isle of Wight.

With climate change likely to increase the risk of extreme weather events and floods, the Environment Agency has launched three simple flooding guides that offer crucial advice on how to protect your home and family – before, during and after flooding.

The guides form an essential part of the agency's ongoing flood awareness campaign which urges every household and business to check their flood risk by calling Floodline on 0845 9881188 or using the online postcode checker at www.environment-agency.gov.uk/flood.

The launch follows the visit of the agency's flood awareness roadshow to Whitstable, which demonstrated the steps people can take to prepare for flooding and provided one-to-one advice to the many attendees.

Silver award for safety

HEWDEN, one of the UK's largest plant hire firms, with depots in Dartford, Belvedere and Ashford, is celebrating winning a prestigious Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents (RoSPA) occupational health and safety award.

The Silver Award, the second highest award given by RoSPA, will be presented at a ceremony at the Hilton Birmingham Metropole Hotel on May 13.

Jim Gray, head of safety, health, environment and quality, said: "We are proud of our employees, who champion excellent health and safety practice."

"This was evident earlier this year when we managed to achieve the milestone of two million hours worked without an injury resulting in lost time from work."

"We aim to achieve a gold award in 2009."

Positioning to ride out the credit crunch

SOUTH East businesses are joining others around the nation and arming themselves for battle against the credit squeeze – but the vast majority still want to keep growing, according to a new survey.

After months of uncertainty for firms outside the financial sector, they are beginning to marshal their forces says Baker Tilly, one of the UK's leading accountant and business advisors, with offices in Bromley and Tunbridge Wells.

The survey, carried out in February and early April, found that a cross-section of businesses adjusted their outlook on the UK economy downwards during March, becoming more focused on cutting costs in the light of an expected drop in earnings.

In addition, the number of companies bringing in additional risk controls tripled, as the effects of the credit crunch deepened and widened. Baker Tilly quizzed the finance directors of more than 100 public and private companies with turnovers of between £20-£250m.

A third of respondents said the credit crunch was beginning to impact more on their business during March. Nearly two-thirds of these said they were experiencing a decrease in profits and a quarter said that they were finding problems with financing.

The biggest change during the month was in attitudes to risk. By the beginning of April, nearly two-thirds were bringing in tougher credit controls and assessment of customer and supplier risk compared with only just over a fifth a month earlier.

The importance of financial forecasting grew, from 11 per cent from February to April, with 44 per cent of finance directors now saying the credit crunch had made it more important to their role.

The number of companies considering cutting costs nearly doubled during March, rising to 45 per cent by the beginning of April. The biggest area for potential cost savings was seen in head count. One in four companies was aiming to limit recruitment and one in six was pondering redundancies.

The perceived threat of bankruptcy among suppliers jumped markedly between the two survey dates, from 18 per cent to 38 per cent.

But the majority of companies – 75 per cent – are continuing their growth strategies this year, and this is only an 11 per cent drop.

Surprisingly, there was only a small change in sentiment on launching shares on the stock market. Of the 15 per cent of those considering listing, two-thirds would do so irrespective of the economy. The majority of companies – 95 per cent – felt economic growth would be substantially lower in 2008 than 2007, with 38 per cent citing the second half of 2009 as the turnaround period. Bill Owen, managing partner at Tunbridge Wells, said: "We are in a period of uncertainty and firms are focusing more on internal controls and assessing external risks."

Delivering the goods

AN INNOVATIVE parcel delivery service, which gives people the freedom to surf and shop without missing deliveries, is expanding rapidly.

ParcelPark now has collection points in Kent and neighbouring counties.

ParcelPark is the brainchild of John Allen and Steve Neal and is based at Kent University's Canterbury campus.

Mr Neal said: "Having worked away from home, we realised there was a gap in the market for a delivery service which worked for the consumer rather than the seller."

Family group growing

By STEVE LOADER

KENT motor group Motorline has become a regional player with the opening of a state-of-the-art Volkswagen dealership near Gatwick airport.

The multi-million pound showroom was opened officially by five-times Olympic gold medalist Sir Steve Redgrave.

Motorline director Thomas Obee said: "We are sure our new showroom will have a wow factor and were delighted that Sir Steve was able to put his muscle behind our launch."

But the 3.5-acre facility also shows Motorline, founded as a modest used car and servicing garage in Canterbury in 1973, flexing its own muscles in an industry dominated by big dealer chains.

The group already had 15 outlets and 400 staff across the Toyota, Lexus, Renault, Nissan, Mitsubishi, Skoda, VW and Ducati brands. However, acquisition of the Gatwick and East Grinstead VW franchise and redevelopment into one of the largest VW outlets in the UK takes Motorline into a new league – and the staff count to nearly 450.

Family-owned and headed by brothers Glen, Thomas and Gary Obee, Motorline has expanded steadily in recent years and is not ruling out yet more growth.

"We are always alert to new openings but sometimes they come along more quickly than expected," said Thomas Obee. "It's a fast-moving business that needs economies of scale and opportunities can arrive like buses – all at the same time." The 'buses' in this case are:

2005 – re-siting and expansion of Toyota Ashford;

2006 – acquisition of Nissan Dartford and addition of all-new Skoda operation; all-new Renault Maidstone; moving into motorcycles with an all-new Ducati franchise for Kent in Ashford;

2007 – acquisition of Nissan Tunbridge Wells.

"We considered expanding outside Kent for some time," Thomas said. "Gatwick/Crawley was a target and this came up."

The new showroom at Crawley has two levels for 16 cars and up to 70 used cars can be displayed outside.

It is a far cry from the garage founded by the Obee brothers' father, Tom, who took a chance on an 'unknown' Japanese franchise.

"One day, a rep left a card and suggested Dad call him," recalled Thomas. "The man was from Toyota and nobody knew the name then, but we took it on and it proved to be a good move."

Apart from growing with Toyota – the world's most profitable car maker – Motorline has expanded quickly into other franchises, overcoming potential rivalries by devoting resources equally and fairly to each brand and ensuring they run efficiently as stand-alone businesses.

"We also try to stay ahead of the game in terms of developing each site," said Thomas as he looked to the future.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

With more than 30 years' experience in banking, Adrian Wenn, regional director of Clydesdale Bank's 10 financial solutions centres in the South East, is ideally qualified to advise Kent business owners – especially with the credit crunch giving many of them their first real taste of difficult economic times. Mr Wenn talks to KOS Media about business survival and what owners can do to help themselves in the current market

ADRIAN WENN: Advice

COMPANIES aiming to expand or needing cash quickly for a strategic move appreciate a bank that comes up with fast decisions supported by local knowledge.

This is where Adrian Wenn appears as a major player on the region's financial scene.

Mr Wenn, from East Farleigh, is regional director of Clydesdale Bank's 10 financial solutions centres in the South East, stretching from Southampton in the west to Maidstone in the east, and including Tunbridge Wells.

He has more than 30 years' experience in banking and is part of Clydesdale's team of more than 200 experts across the region.

The financial solutions centre is a model unique to Clydesdale and its sister Yorkshire Bank.

Q What are your views on the UK economy right now?

A The UK economy isn't in a good place. By now we are all well aware of what's happening: on the other side of the pond; the credit crunch; the mortgage rush and Northern Rock. Economists still can't agree whether the UK will slide into recession. What is clear though is that the volatility in the market will make it feel as though we are in a recession, regardless of the official definition.

Q What is the future for business owners?

A Keeping businesses profitable, or at the very least alive, during periods of volatility isn't necessarily new to business owners. Many sat tight when recession hit in the early 1990s and when the dotcom bubble burst in 2001 and lived to tell the tale. But for others who have only ever operated in favourable economic conditions, the prospect of surviving in such turmoil gives them cause for concern.

Without painting too grim a picture, it's going to get worse before it gets better. Some mortgage lenders have started shutting their doors to new customers and the rate of commercial repossessions is expected to rise. Add to this the Chancellor downgrading his predictions for GDP growth in the Budget and the Chamber of Commerce's belief that it will slow by more than 1 per cent this year, and it's understandable why policy-makers are preparing for tough times ahead. Although few would have predicted what was going to happen in the US and the knock-on effects for world markets, our own research into UK business confidence – which was carried out before the global credit crunch took hold – found that 60 per cent of UK SMEs – small and medium-sized enterprises – expected 2008 to be much more difficult than 2007. So it seems UK SMEs have been readying themselves for turbulent times.

Q What steps can businesses take?

A There are a few simple steps that can give them the best chance of survival or even growth.

Believe in yourself: for those business owners who made their mark during the UK's prolonged period of growth it is likely that this will be their first real exposure to economic instability. The important thing to remember is that a recession can throw up opportunities.

Think power suits, shoulder pads and Wall Street – the 1980s weren't the best in terms of fashion – but for examples of cut-throat business acumen you need look no further. Sometimes it does pay to be hard-nosed.

Trust in your staff: it is important to surround yourself with trustworthy, conscientious and hard-working employees and make sure they understand the challenges the business is facing.

Profit is sanity: hard times mean ensuring every aspect of your business works towards future success.

Areas that don't add value or won't turn a profit in future need to be harvested – but cost-cutting needs to be well thought through.

Remember your customer: more so than ever during a period of unrest, the customer is king. What any business owner should be doing at this time is involving the customer in the company and letting them know about future plans.

Proper preparation: without quoting the Army's 7Ps word-for-word, planning and preparation can only help to prevent poor performance.

Young guns shine at entrepreneur awards

KENT students were able to demonstrate their entrepreneurial skills to some of the county's top business-people at the recent annual Young Entrepreneurs dinner and presentation sponsored by the county branch of the Institute of Directors.

Keynote speaker was IoD director general Miles Templeman, who is also chairman designate of Shepherd Neame brewery.

Winner of the Young Enterprise competition was a team from Chatham Grammar School for Boys, whose company Twangus had successfully produced and sold a book of poetry.

Mark Gilchrist, 27-year-old chef and game enthusiast, was winner of the Young Entrepreneur of the Year award, who spoke about how his love of shooting and the countryside led to his starting up his business, Game For Everything.

Frazer Thompson, IoD Kent chairman, said: "It was a great evening. Sometimes, businesses need to put something back and from their vast experience, give young people starting out some advice and support."

Bradley Harmsworth, a development director for Giles in Kent, representing the evening's sponsors Giles Insurance Brokers, said: "The quality of the presentations given by the competition winners was nothing short of impressive."

"Giles is proud to work with Kent Association of Young Entrepreneurs and to support Kent's future business leaders."

Bill still has wind in his sails

BILL Laidlaw, sales director for SeaFrance Limited is celebrating his 35th year in the ferry industry, having spent over 40 years in shipping.

He began his career working as an office boy for P&O Ferries, and he has since been assigned to a number of high-profile shipping projects, including setting up a fast ferry service for Qatar Shipping between Doha, Bahrain and Dubai.

Between 1984 and 1994, Bill worked as managing director of Sealink Newhaven-Dieppe Ferries.

He set up SeaFrance Limited in 1995 when Newhaven-Dieppe

Ferries withdrew from the Sealink British Ferries pool.

Mr Laidlaw was virtually given a blank sheet of paper by SeaFrance to set up the UK arm of the French operator, which in the past 10 years has grown from just one member of staff to nearly 200 employees, operating a fleet of six ferries, including superferries the SeaFrance Berlioz and the SeaFrance Rodin.

He said: "Over the years I've seen fantastic growth in the ferry market and the development of new ships which has lifted the industry way beyond anybody's expectations."

Movers & Shakers

KENT law firm, Girlings, has appointed Peter Morgan as the firm's first non-executive chairman. The appointment, which is unusual for a law firm, reflects the increasingly commercial nature of legal practice.

Peter Morgan has been deputy chairman of Girlings since July 2000. He joined as a partner in 1972, specialising in personal injury law.

Mr Morgan has now retired from full time practice and as a consultant, assumed the role of non-executive chairman.

He is president of Kent County Cricket Club for 2008 and sits as a recorder in the Crown Courts.

The previous chairman of Girlings, Francis Elton, retired from full-time practice on March 31, having been chairman since July 2000. He will continue to work with Girlings as a consultant.

He also joined the firm in 1972, specialising in private client, criminal law, road traffic and liquor and gambling licensing work.

Girlings has 26 partners and more than 120 members staff at its offices in Ashford, Canterbury, Folkestone, Herne Bay and Margate.

DR JERRY Cross, a research leader at independent Kent-based East Malling Research (EMR) has been appointed as visiting professor in horticultural entomology at the Natural Resources Institute (NRI), part of the University of Greenwich at Medway.

He studies the impact of insect pests on horticulture in the UK and overseas, specialising in developing environmentally acceptable control methods for fruit including apples and pears.

Dr Cross has a strong track record of collaborating closely with scientists at the NRI, including Professor David Hall's research group, which focus on naturally occurring attractants and repellents for insect pests and the development of control methods, which are not harmful to crops, humans or other wildlife.

He will hold the title of visiting professor for three years and says he is keen to further enhance the productive working relationship between the two organisations.

NATIONAL recruitment group, Ashford-based HR GO plc, has announced the appointment of Hazel Jackson as account development director for its national sales department.

Based in Leeds, Ms Jackson will provide comprehensive training and support to more than 50 Joint Venture companies and ensure internal and external compliance, conducting client service reviews, and developing cogent management information.

Her previous employment includes two years at First Direct as a communication co-ordinator and over nine and a half years at Reed Managed Services in various managerial roles.

She said: "When the opportunity arose to become part of the group I knew it was the ideal career move."

HR GO, which is celebrating its 50th year, is one of the top 50 recruitment organisations in the UK covering a wide range of industry sectors.

The business has a turnover of £90 million and employs 450 permanent staff.

IN ASSOCIATION WITH

A fresh challenge

New breed of farmers ready for action

By RICHARD PARSONS*BUSINESS PUBLISHER

richard.parsons@kosmedia.co.uk

SOME of the first student farmers of the next generation were recently awarded their completion certificates at Hadlow College.

The college's first intake of 15 'Fresh Start' students got their certificates in front of a packed audience from Valerie Carter, rural sector director of the South East England Development Agency (SEEDA).

Fresh Start is a government-backed initiative led by the farming industry and launched in 2006 by Sir Don Curry.

Tradition

Its core aim is to ensure the continuation of farming through the next generation and beyond, following the current break in tradition whereby farming typically was handed down from father to son – now many farmers retire with no one to continue the business.

Hadlow College became the first in Kent and only the second in the UK to become a Fresh Start Academy running the 12-18 month course, so these students are amongst the very first in the country to graduate.

The programme provides agricultural students with business-linked modules, supported by directly and inter-related organisations including the NFU and Business Link.

Rural business consultant, Douglas Jackson, who has helped drive the Fresh Start initiative forward in Kent and across the South East, said: "To be successful in the future these [farming] industries need to be progressive and entrepreneurial with forward-thinking and unique ideas but based on a good grounding in core business management skills."

As well as teaching the new skills required by the modern day farmer, the scheme also "match-makes" retiring farmers with students to provide mentors and bridge the gap between those leaving the industry and those entering.

As well as earning the individual certificate, the students were also put in teams to compete for the Farm Business Challenge Trophy, which rewards the team that has put forward the best bid and business plan for a theoretical farm rental.

Roger Gough, cabinet member for regeneration and supporting independence for Kent County Council, presented the trophy to the team consisting of Ruth Bastable, Ed Lovejoy, Gemma Lovejoy and team leader Simon Pierson.

The next intake of students on the Fresh Start programme will be in September this year.

Missing the target

HOUSING completions will be well down in Kent this year and will certainly not meet expected targets, according to an independent partnership of chartered surveyors.

Cluttons reports that several land deals have been completed in the region since the beginning of the year, but the firm suspects they may be either held undeveloped or developed at a slow rate until the market recovers.

David Parry, who leads the development land section in Cluttons' Maidstone office, says many developers prefer to take options which defer development for a year or two in order to wait for the market to settle.

Most larger house-builders still need a "land-bank" for the future, but, he says, it is self-evident that housing completions will be well down in the county this year, and will certainly not meet national targets. With falling property prices, land values will also fall significantly.

A five per cent fall in the value of houses means, effectively, a decrease in land value by as much as 10-15 per cent.

The firm reckons development land values have been adversely affected by increasing affordable housing quotas and planning obligations.

It has noticed a "discernible increase in interest" from housing associations, which are buying land even with allocations for private housing to speed up delivery of homes.

Developers, it says, are expected to be carrying out a number of schemes on behalf of these associations over the next year or so.

In the meantime, Cluttons says the slowing housing market and difficulties in obtaining mortgages are beginning to take their toll on the region's house-builders, particularly with the sales of apartments.

Cluttons reports that most national and regional developers are showing a patchy sales rate from one week to the next, although houses are still tending to sell better than flats.

Cuts in interest rates by the Bank of England were supposed to help reinvigorate the housing market, but some lenders have failed to pass on these cuts. So with the real price of mortgages rising, it has become increasingly difficult for many people to break into the property market.

Cluttons says that according to government statistics, the average person in Kent earns about £23,500 a year and although a few mortgage funders are still offering 95 per cent loan-to-value, the interest on these loans is significantly higher.

In real terms this means that for those wishing to buy at the lower end of the market, (£125,000 to £200,000) they will have to cope with an average of a seven per cent rise in monthly mortgage payments. In the light of these market conditions, many developers have resorted to offering discounts, part-exchange packages, part-rented and part-ownership schemes and other enticements in an effort to keep the market moving.

The government is trying to make more houses affordable by introducing a scheme called HomeBuy through the Housing Corporation.

HomeBuy enables those who qualify, (first-time buyers, key workers and those in social rented housing) to buy a property outright funded by a conventional mortgage/savings and with the assistance of an equity loan.

Cluttons has noticed an increase in the number of applicants registering for property.

And on new building schemes developers are also seeing increases in viewings, although as yet few offers as prospective movers wait for the market to settle down.

Surveyors' poll reveals extent of slowdown

THE balance of surveyors reporting demand for commercial property in the first three months of this year has fallen at the fastest pace for six years and rental confidence has fallen at the fastest rate for a decade, says the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors (RICS) commercial property survey.

Nearly a third – 30 per cent – more surveyors reported a fall than a rise in demand, compared with 15 per cent in Q4 2007. All sectors reported a fall for the second consecutive quarter with the retail sector showing the largest decline, dropping to the lowest balance in the survey's history.

Forty per cent more surveyors reported a fall than a rise in retail demand. The continuing credit turmoil and a slowing housing market is clearly weighing upon both retailer and consumer confidence.

New occupier inquiries also fell across all three sectors for the second consecutive month and at a faster pace. Unsurprisingly, the office sector has been worst hit. Thirty-five per cent more surveyors reported a fall than a rise. Confidence in activity fell across all sectors with retail falling to the lowest level on record. Surveyors now expect rents to fall in both the office and industrial sectors, while in the retail market declines in rents are expected to double.

SPECIAL REPORT: FA TROPHY FINAL 2008 EBBSFLEET UTD v TORQUAY UTD

WEMBLEY STADIUM, SATURDAY, MAY 10. KICK-OFF 2.30PM

Picture: PHIL HOUGHTON

Golden opportunity

MAKING the FA Trophy final is not just about the chance for Ebbsfleet to win silverware, but the Gravesend club could ensure their future for many seasons to come.

Fleet, who are one of the only full-time professional clubs in the Blue Square Premier League, have had to work with a fairly small budget, but the Wembley final opportunity could ensure the club have an even better chance of making the play-offs next season.

This season's march to the famous Wembley arch has earned them £38,000 in prize money and the club could stand to make more than £200,000, according to new owner Will Brooks.

If Fleet win they will net £50,000 in prize money and take 45 per cent of the net gate receipts. Even if they lose, the club stands to pick up £25,000 for being the runner-up.

The club should also reap the rewards from an estimated 25,000 fans who have purchased tickets for the final and sales of Fleet Wembley merchandise.

Brooks, creator of website MyFC, said: "From the final, the club could stand to earn between £200,000 and £250,000 and that is without including all the Wembley merchandise which has sold really well. Everyone seems to be getting behind the club, which is great."

"I think we have sold just past the 20,000 mark on the tickets and have bought another batch. I believe we will sell around 25,000 by match day. We also are hoping people will buy tickets at the ground on the day."

The final will not just be a celebration for Kent football, but will attract a global audience as MyFC members from all over the world are set to descend on Wembley Stadium next week.

Newly acquired fans due to MyFootballClub have made trips to Stonebridge Road since the takeover was rubber stamped. However, the occasion of the club's first-ever Wembley appearance will spark a wave of overseas supporters following the Fleet.

Brooks added: "The final has gone down well with the MyFC members and when the tickets first went on sale, almost 5,000 members bought tickets through the MyFC website."

"We are expecting people to come from America, Australia and most of Europe, so it will be a global affair. The members have organised a get together on the final day to meet one and other, which is nice to see."

By TOM HOWARD

ACTING chairman Brian Kilcullen has hailed this year's team as the best ever and now feel Ebbsfleet United are no longer a 'small club.'

Kilcullen, who has been a director at the Gravesend club for nine years, is amazed by what the Fleet have achieved this year and how they have climbed from the Ryman Leagues.

He said: "I couldn't have imagined we would be in the position we are now."

"I have seen teams win the FA Trophy, so we knew it was possible, but we have always been considered a small team so it never really crossed my mind. The club has come an awful long way in a short time."

Achievement

"Just a few years ago we were a Ryman League club and now we have established ourselves in the Conference and this achievement sends a message out that we are no longer a small club."

"What Liam and his team have done is brilliant for the club. They deserve a lot of credit. They've worked hard all year and it's no less than what they deserve after beating Aldershot over two legs. I would go as far as saying that this is the best team we have ever had."

The acting chairman, who is in charge of the remaining 25 per cent of the club, is hoping Kent's football fraternity turn out in force for the final.

'This is the best team we have ever had'

He added: "We hope for a huge turnout to support us at Wembley. The Gravesend area has a lot of football fans who support London clubs and I am sure they will come along to support us. I think the amount that will turn out will be surprising."

"It's a long time since a Kent club has played at Wembley and I remember when Gillingham got there in the play-off final, they had a huge following."

'My' way

AFTER the extraordinary takeover by website MyFootballClub in the winter, creator Will Brooks cannot believe his luck that his new team have reached Wembley.

The website, which allows football fans to become part owners of a football club by contributing £35-a-year subscription, only went online a year ago.

The deal, completed in March, was met by some discomfort by Fleet fans initially, but they are slowly coming round to the idea of having 30,000 owners, all of who have a say in day-to-day decisions at the club.

Brooks said: "I can't believe our luck. We could have picked another club, but we chose Ebbsfleet after a lot of consideration and I am glad we did."

"At the moment I'm more exhausted than excited, because everyone is running around trying to get everything ready. It's like before Christmas when you are panicking to make sure everything goes how it should. By 5pm on Friday I'm sure I will be starting to get excited. It is amazing we have made this far and being involved with this club at the moment is phenomenal."

Brooks, who has watched the majority of Fleet's games this season, said being in the crowd at Aldershot in the semi-final second leg was one that will live with him forever.

"I've never experienced the scenes and stress which were shown by the fans at Aldershot," he said. "When that injury-time goal was scored, people were crying and hugging each other - it was amazing."

"I spoke to Liam Daish after the game and he said to me it was the biggest moment in his managerial career, which shows what a massive achievement it is."

After the game, Brooks felt for the first time just how important the takeover has been for the club.

He said: "A couple of the ex-directors told me the club could not have made it without our takeover, which was nice. A couple of weeks before, Liam was told he would have to cut the player budget. Luckily we stepped in and the team have kept their players."

"It's also nice to know the former directors believe we have the club's best intentions at heart."

EBBSFLEET SQUAD

LANCE CRONIN

• Goalkeeper • Squad No 1 • Age 22: Ebbsfleet's number one for the majority of the season and often is a match winner with stunning stops. He began his career at Crystal Palace and is the England Conference team's player between the posts.

PETER HAWKINS

• Defender • Squad No 2 • Age 29: Predominantly a left-back throughout his career, six-footer Hawkins is tremendously adaptable and can also play on the right or in the centre if required. Hawkins played in the Football League for MK Dons in 2003.

SACHA OPINEL

• Defender • Squad No 3 • Age 31: The flamboyant Frenchman is a crowd favourite at Stonebridge Road and rarely lets the Fleet down. Left back, known for wearing his heart on his sleeve and never ducks out of a challenge.

GARY MacDONALD

• Defender • Squad No 4 • Age 27: MacDonald has been out injured with a horrible cruciate ligament injury for most of the season. The defender played under manager Liam Daish at Havant & Waterlooville in 2003. The former Woking player joined Fleet last summer.

JAMES SMITH

• Defender • Squad No 5 • Age 22: 'Smudge' is a highly rated central defender and is just coming back to fitness after injury. He has made 28 starts this season and has signed a new contract in April, which will keep him at Stonebridge Road until the end of next season.

PAUL MCCARTHY

• Defender • Squad No 6 • Age 36: Irish defender and club captain. One of the more experienced members of the squad, McCarthy played his 100th game for Fleet in the autumn and has signed on for another year. He was part of the Wycombe side which reached the FA Cup semi-final in 2001.

DANNY SLATTER

• Midfielder • Squad No 7 • Age 26: Slatter has had an injury-plagued season which has kept him out of action for most of the campaign, only making four appearances. The former Welsh under-21 started his career as a trainee at Chelsea, before Liam Daish signed him from Welling United in 2005.

STACY LONG

• Midfielder • Squad No 8 • Age 22: Long is a creative midfielder with a deadly finish, chipping in with 15 goals which made him the top scorer at the club this season. His main weapon is his pace and he is a dead-ball specialist. Long has also played in the England Conference team and in the Football League with Notts County.

RAPHAEL NADE

• Striker • Squad No 9 • Age 27: Born in the Ivory Coast, Nade has made 25 starts this season and scored four goals. He can play on the right wing and is very strong in the air. Nade had Football League experience with Carlisle United. This is his first season at Ebbsfleet United.

• Striker • Squad No 10 • Age 27: Eribenne is a strong and physical striker who holds the ball up well and is a deadly finisher. He has scored nine times this season and played under Daish at Havant & Waterlooville in 2003. Eribenne's aerial presence can unsettle the best of defences.

CHARLEY HEARN

• Midfielder • Squad No 11 • Age 24: Joined Fleet on loan in March and is a solid central midfielder. He began his career at Millwall and played for Northampton Town back in 2004. He has not yet signed a deal to stay at Stonebridge Road for next season.

CHRIS MCPHEE

• Midfielder • Squad No 12 • Age 24: Former Torquay United striker can play at right back, right wing and up front. McPhee started his career at Brighton & Hove Albion and made 60 appearances. The striker has a clinical finish and is lethal from the penalty spot. He has scored 11 goals this season.

NEIL BARRETT

• Midfielder • Squad No 14 • Age 25: Started his career alongside Danny Slatter and John Terry as a trainee at Chelsea, before moving to Portsmouth where he made 23 appearances. The midfielder is a crisp passer of the ball and can either play in attacking or defensive roles.

Can Fleet live the Wembley dream?

GLENN PEARSON looks at the Kent club's chances ahead of the big game

ALL the hype, all the anticipation and all the planning ends next Saturday as Ebbsfleet experience their first FA Trophy final at Wembley.

Ever since Liam Daish's side beat Blue Square Premier champions Aldershot 4-2 on aggregate on March 15, all the talk has been of Wembley and the club's first appearance in the final.

Ebbsfleet's promotion charge faltered since then – and because of an action-packed fixture list – which meant they missed the play-offs by 12 points.

All of that will be forgotten if the Fleet lift the trophy in front of what should be an Ebbsfleet/Kent majority at Wembley.

Despite the Fleet's sluggish end to the season, they have been able to nurse back to fitness key players who will almost certainly see a shirt with their name on it, hanging in the Wembley dressing room.

Inspirational captain Patrick McCarthy missed nine game towards the end of the season, returning for the final three fixtures which means he will be fit and ready.

Strikers Chukki Eribenne and John Akinde also missed games towards the end of the campaign with niggling injuries, but they were able to get some much needed rest and should mean they go into the final all guns blazing.

Daish said: "We are starting to prepare for Wembley now but I have given the players active rest as a lot of them are tired. Next week we will start fully training again and really getting back to work for the final."

Ebbsfleet will have to be wary of Torquay's strike duo of Chris Zebroski and Tim Sills, while captain Chris Hargreaves is the engine room of the side.

They both recorded a win each when they faced one another in the league, and despite Torquay being 17 points ahead over the course of the season, that will all go out the window as they come to terms with the big Wembley surface.

Fleet are the home side and will occupy the England dressing room.

EXPECTED FLEET LINE-UP

Gulls flying toward final

THE FA Trophy final may not be the only time Torquay United make the long journey to Wembley this May.

The Gulls finished third in the Blue Square Premier which netted them a place in the lottery of the end of season play-offs. They were drawn against near rivals Exeter City and a positive result in the second leg to be played at Plainmoor on Monday, could see Torquay back in another final on May 18.

Ebbsfleet fans will secretly hope Torquay reach the play-off final as the Gulls could have an eye on the greater prize – promotion to the Football League.

Manager Paul Buckle saw his side finish level on points with second-placed Cambridge United after scoring 83 goals over the season.

Their good form in the league saw the club perform the role of underdogs as they knocked out League One side Yeovil Town after beating them 4-1 in the FA Cup.

It is a drastic change for a club that ended its 80-year stay in the Football League after being relegated at the end of last season.

What followed that became a much talked about point as Leroy Rosenior was hired and fired within 10 minutes after a consortium bought the club and felt he wasn't the man for them.

They offered the job to former Manchester City manager Keith Curle who turned them down, before chief executive Colin Lee tuned to Buckle.

The Gulls remained in the top reaches of the Blue Square Premier for the majority of the season thanks largely to their in-form strike partnership.

The strikeforce of Tim Sills and Chris Zebroski heralded 27 goals between them.

Zebroski was on target for the Gulls when they beat the Fleet 3-1 back in February, but that was only after the Kent side had the best of their first encounter at Stonebridge Road which they won 2-1 back in October thanks to goals from Luke Moore and Stacy Long.

MARK RICKETTS

• Defender • Squad No 15 • Age 23: Can play at right back or in the heart of the defence and has made the right-back position his own this season. Started his career at Wimbledon before moving to Charlton. Signed at Stonebridge Road in 2006.

LIAM COLEMAN

• Midfielder • No 16 • Age 21: Coleman is another player who has played for Torquay United, but he began his career at Colchester United. This season the talented midfielder has been a fringe player but has impressed when called upon by Daish.

GEORGE PURCELL

• Midfielder • Striker • Squad No 17 • Age 19: The youngster worked his way through the youth ranks at Gillingham before joining Ebbsfleet United in 2006. Purcell, who was born in Gravesend, has plenty of pace and can play on the left wing as well as up front.

LUKE MOORE

• Midfielder • Striker • Squad No 18 • Age 19: Moore graduated from Fleet's youth side and played his 100th game for the club in December. He can play on the right wing as well as up front and has lightning pace. Moore is highly rated by Daish and has scored four times in his last four games.

JOHN AKINDE

• Striker • Squad No 19 • Age 18: Hot prospect. He made his breakthrough halfway through the campaign. Has signed a contract for next season and is Ebbsfleet's quickest player. Has scored 10 goals in 21 games. He began the season on loan at Whitstable Town in Ryman Division One South.

DAN STUBBS

• Midfielder • Squad No 20 • Age 20: Another product of the club's youth scheme, Stubbs is an exciting midfielder who has shown potential to break into the first-team squad and performed admirably in pre-season friendlies.

SAM MOTT

• Goalkeeper • Squad No 21 • Age 19: A young goalkeeper who graduated from Fleet's youth team, signing a professional contract in 2006. Loaned out to Whitstable during 2005-06, he performed well there and put in some decent performances for the Fleet when deputising for Lance Cronin last season.

LEE MASKELL

• Midfielder • Squad No 23 • Age 18: Maskell is one of four players who progressed last season through the Conference Youth League scheme within the club. Has made a handful of appearances for the Fleet as a substitute and been on-loan at Sutton United.

DARIUS CHARLES

• Defender • Squad No 24 • Age 20: Ealing-born defender began as a trainee at Brentford in 2004 and signed professional forms in 2006. Started life as a central defender but was converted to a left-back by Terry Butcher at Brentford and can also play left midfield. Signed on loan for the Fleet in March.

MICHAEL BOSTWICK

• Midfielder • Squad No 25 • Age 19: Following his signing after an injury crisis at Stonebridge Road in August, Bostwick made his Fleet debut at Rushden & Diamonds. Although originally signed by Daish with an eye to providing cover in the centre of defence, Bostwick has featured heavily in the centre of midfield for the Fleet this season.

RONNIE BULL

• Defender • Squad No 28 • Age 27: Began his playing career at Fulham before moving to Millwall where it took off. While with the Lions, he played in the same youth side as Tim Cahill and Lucas Neill. On loan at Fleet until the end of the season. Usually deployed as a left back, he can also play on the right of defence and in midfield.

LIAM DAISH

• Manager • Age 40: In his playing career Daish played for Portsmouth, Cambridge United, Birmingham City and Coventry City before moving into management. He has made two Wembley appearances with Cambridge United in 1990 and with Birmingham City in 1995. Daish has international honours playing for Republic of Ireland from 1992-1996. His management career began at Havant & Waterlooville in 1999. He joined Ebbsfleet United in 2005 with assistant Alan Kimble.

ALAN KIMBLE

• Assistant Manager • Age 42: Played alongside Dion Dublin and Liam Daish at Cambridge before signing for Wimbledon in 1993 for £175,000. Established himself as a Premiership regular for the Dons, and was a dead-ball specialist. He joined Daish at Stonebridge Road in 2005 and has helped forge a great squad at the Fleet.

SPECIAL REPORT: FA TROPHY FINAL 2008: EBBSFLEET UTD v TORQUAY UTD

WEMBLEY STADIUM, SATURDAY, MAY 10. KICK-OFF 2.30PM

'Savour this moment'

By GLENN PEARSON & TOM HOWARD

LIAM Daish is an old school kind of manager.

While players in higher divisions will call their manager 'the boss,' Ebbsfleet players refer to Daish as 'the gaffer' and you can see the respect they have for him.

He lives and breathes football. A man of few words, but a man that you know, come 3pm next Saturday, will know exactly what to say to his players experiencing Wembley for the first time.

Experience

"I wish I could turn back the years and play at any stadium let alone Wembley, but the players have got to really take it in and enjoy it because I know from the experience that the whole day goes very quickly so every moment has got to be savoured," he said.

"It was quite a while ago that I was at Wembley but there is a real buzz about the place and I am really

to Wembley sent a tingle down his spine

looking forward to it. It sends a bit of a tingle down my spine and I am sure it will do the same to the players when they see it."

Daish had a chance to look around Wembley on a media day last month and was impressed with the new-look stadium.

He last played at the old Wembley in the AutoWindscreens final for Birmingham in 1995 and is impressed with the new 90,000 capacity stadium.

He said: "It's a magnificent stadium, very, very impressive. I am looking forward to the game and so are the players."

"It will be nice when the ground is full and the noise levels are up. It really hits home that it is a great day to look forward to."

"The fans are in for something special and I'm sure they will enjoy the whole day."

It has been a long journey for Daish and Ebbsfleet as a club. It started with the name change from Gravesend & Northfleet to Ebbsfleet, the historical takeover by website MyFootballClub.co.uk and now a first ever appearance at Wembley.

Whatever happens, it will be a memorable campaign and one that should further unite Kent football supporters.

Who'd have thought it?

By EBBSFLEET UTD REPORTER
TOM HOWARD

WHAT a difference a year makes. Last year I was struggling at college trying to get my journalism qualifications and Ebbsfleet United were Gravesend & Northfleet. Now look at us, both at the terrific new Wembley stadium.

I have only been a sports reporter for eight months now and in my first month in the job I was given the task of covering Football League hopefuls Ebbsfleet United.

At first I was excited and a little bit intimidated as I hadn't encountered the club before as a football fan, and this was my first big job in my career.

However, I can't say I haven't enjoyed watching the Fleet play at Stonebridge Road – a ground which oozes character. I remember my first game in the press box being showered by flakes of paint, as the ball crashed off the roof of the wooden main stand.

In the league I have witnessed some breathtaking football, with 4-1 wins against Weymouth and Grays Athletic midway through the season.

There have been dull games too, but that has to be expected, you can't perform all the time. The extraordinary takeover by MyFootballClub has given me a wealth of stories and has given the tale of their excellent season an added edge.

Winner

One thing that has stood out brighter more than anything this season, is the togetherness of the Fleet players and management.

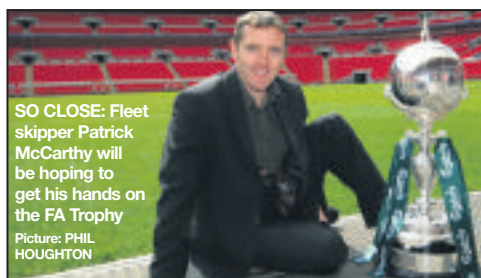

For the majority of the games, I have seen players giving 100 per cent for each other on the pitch and being close friends off it. This was never more evident than in the latter stages of the FA Trophy run.

On a bitterly cold night at Stonebridge Road, Stacy Long pulled out all the stops with a winner in injury time and to see the players' reaction was the first time I thought they stood a real chance of making it to Wembley.

Both legs of the semi-final were games that will live long in my memory with the noise and the support from the crowd and the dramatic outcome of penalties in the first leg. In the second leg in the second half, I found myself willing them on which I know as a reporter is unprofessional, but as a football fan I desperately wanted them to do it. The celebrations at the final whistle epitomised the togetherness shown throughout the year. The players waited for the injured Danny Slatter, who has been on crutches due to an horrific injury, before they began the party on the pitch, a very nice touch I thought.

Now we both arrive at Wembley for the FA Trophy final, full of anticipation and hope awaiting the final chapter of Ebbsfleet 2007/08 to unravel. I for one, can't wait.

SO CLOSE: Fleet skipper Patrick McCarthy will be hoping to get his hands on the FA Trophy

Picture: PHIL HOUGHTON

Why Paddy is playing it cool

FLEET captain Patrick McCarthy is refusing to get carried away with the thought of playing at Wembley – until he is named in the team for Saturday's FA Trophy final.

The Ebbsfleet skipper has been a tower of strength at the back this season and despite suffering a succession of injuries, he is a player Liam Daish knows he can count on.

The 36-year-old was struck by the brilliance of Wembley when he was given a sneak preview at a media day last month and can't wait to get out on the pitch.

He said: "It's incredible really, it takes my breath away. It is worth every penny they spent on building it. The pitch is perfect and the stadium is just the best."

"I think we will start getting really excited when the team sheet is read out and if I'm on it, I'll be delighted."

McCarthy is shocked at the support the club has got from Kent and is looking forward to putting on a show for the 35,000 plus at Wembley.

He said: "It is incredible how the whole county has got behind us. Everyone you meet in the area is coming and it is really, really good for the club."

The tough-tackling centre-back knows what to expect from Torquay, but thinks the Fleet have earned the right to get in the final and his team mates will not freeze on the big stage.

"It will be a difficult game because they have been in the top two of the league all season," he said. "They are a very attacking side and we will have to be busy to stop them."

"We have a good team spirit at the club. We have had some tough times along the way so I think we deserve to get to Wembley."

"We haven't done it the easy way, we played the champions of our league who have been the best club."

"There is nothing in comparison to this, it is incredible."

The local lads

FOR three of the Ebbsfleet United players, the whole experience will have a slightly different meaning.

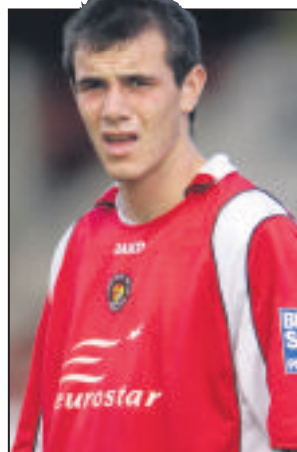

George Purcell, John Akinde and Luke Moore have all progressed through the youth team at the Gravesend club and the three local boys now find themselves playing at the home of English football.

For promising striker Akinde, his season started at Ryman Division One South team Whitstable Town as an on-loan player. The 18-year-old was in desperate need of first team football and since then, he has broken into the Fleet first team and has become a distinctive figure in the Liam Daish's front line.

Akinde said: "I am feeling good and glad to be back from injury which has kept me out a few games towards the end of the season. To be representing my home town club at Wembley is something I cannot really explain to be honest. It will be an amazing experience and I just cannot wait. The year has been unbelievable really, I have been working really hard at Whitstable Town when I was on-loan. I hope I get the chance to play in the final."

Moore is another striker who has featured frequently in the first team and the youngster can't believe the situation that lies before him next Saturday. He has been at the club since 2005 and has played more than 100 games for his home town club, and Daish rates him highly.

Moore: "It feels unbelievable and to be honest it still has not sunk in. You see it on television in the FA Cup and it just looked amazing. Wembley has only just opened really and two years ago I would never have believed we would be playing there."

Ups and downs

Sports Editor GLENN PEARSON reviews the season and looks at how Kent clubs fared CHARLTON ATHLETIC: A season that started out with so much promise ended on a flat note for the Addicks as they missed out on promotion to the Premier League. After a good start to their Championship campaign, the Addicks were riding high at the top and occupied an automatic promotion spot. However, towards the final quarter of the season, Charlton's form dipped and they not only missed out on an automatic place, but also the play-offs to boot. Position: 12th.

GILLINGHAM: Where do we start? Ronnie Jepson lasted only six games before he departed Priestfield as Iffy Onoura and Mick Docherty took over until a new boss was found by chairman Paul Scally. Eventually, and after eight weeks, Mark Stimson was named the new boss. He had his work cut out from the start as a number of players were released and the club battled against relegation from League One on the final day at Leeds United. Position: 22 (on 03/05)

EBBSFLEET: The Fleet had a memorable season considering developments at the Gravesend club. They were the subject of a takeover by website MyFootballClub.co.uk, the first of its kind in British football history. On the field, the Fleet were in the hunt for a play-off spot all season, but came up just short at the end. However, the biggest success was in reaching the FA Trophy final at Wembley for the first time in the club's history. Position: 11th.

BROMLEY: The Lillywhites fell short of a play-off place in Blue Square South after a season of change. Manager Mark Goldberg stepped down midway through the season, leaving the path open for player/boss Simon Osborn to take over. However, just before the end of the season, chairman Jeremy Dolke announced he was selling the club as he could no longer put in the required investment. A few weeks later, Osborn announced he would also be stepping down. The club face an interesting summer break. Position: 11th.

WELLING UNITED: The Wings struggled for the majority of the season occupying a place near the bottom of Blue Square South. Manager Neil Smith was sacked at the beginning of January and the club brought in Andy Ford as manager. Ford did a good job towards the end as the club escaped relegation and they can look forward to an improved campaign next season. Position: 16th

RAMSGATE: The Rams were a real success in the Ryman Premier League this season. Manager Jim Ward led them to the play-offs, having occupied a place in the top eight for the majority of the campaign. They eventually lost their semi-final 2-1 to Staines Town in the week, but they can be proud of their achievements. Ramsgate also won the Isthmian Cup. Position: 5th (play-offs)

TONBRIDGE ANGELS: The Angels finished their season within a whisker of the play-offs, with new boss Tommy Warrilow guiding them out of relegation trouble and into the top eight. With the likes of Carl Rook around for a full season and a few more signings before pre-season starts, the Angels will be contenders for the play-offs next campaign. Position: 8th.

MARGATE: A horrendous amount of injuries curtailed the Blues chances of promotion and manager Robin Trott can count himself hard done by having lost his job two games before the end of the season. Inconsistency cost Margate as each time they had a chance to make a play-off place their own, they blew it. They will now hope to keep the likes of James Pincock, Jay Saunders and Rob Haworth over the close season as they wait to find out who will be their new boss. Position: 9th.

MAIDSTONE: The Stones stayed up in the Ryman Premier League, but it took a final day victory at Folkestone Invicta to secure safety. The club started the season at the wrong end of the table before finding their feet midway through the campaign. However, a string of defeats towards the end of the season saw them almost make an immediate return to Ryman Division One South. Keeping senior players such as Ian Selley and Mark Saunders, mixed with some younger players, should see the Stones safe again next season. Position: 17th.

FOLKESTONE INVICTA: The season ended in disaster for manager Neil Cugley and his side with relegation on the final day. Invicta had given themselves a lifeline after coming from 3-1 down to beat Margate 5-4 in the penultimate game, but defeat to Maidstone on the final day means they will be playing Ryman South football next season. Position: 21 (relegated).

DARTFORD: The Darts capped off an excellent season with the Ryman Division One North title. Tony Burman's side led for the majority of the campaign and eventually saw off AFC Sudbury's threat with a game to spare. They will add extra spice to the Ryman Premier next season when they take on newly-promoted Dover. Position: 1st (promoted)

DOVER: The Whites ended up running away with the Ryman Division One South title and were worthy winners. They crushed pretty much everyone in their path and lost only four games the entire season. With the announcement manager Andy Hesselthaler signed a new two-year deal at the Crabble, the Whites are gunning for back-to-back promotions. Position: 1st (promoted).

CRAY WANDERERS: The Wands were the surprise package of the season who crept up from nowhere to end up as challengers to Dover. They finished a highly commendable second in the division thanks largely to an amazing 28 game unbeaten run. They finished in the play-offs at the end of the season and could be promoted if they win their final. Position: 3rd (play-offs).

SITTINGBOURNE: The Bricks started the season with Steve Lovell at the helm, but after his departure to Ashford with the club in the play-offs, non-league legend Gary Abbott took over and radically changed the make-up of the squad. He maintained a charge for the play-offs but in the end they came up just short. Position: 9th.

ASHFORD TOWN: There were a lot of comings and goings at the Homelands this season and in the end they came closer than expected to a play-off place. Clive Walker came in from Dover at the start of the season and after a fairly non-descript start, he was replaced by Steve Lovell. The new boss was given money to spend and he attracted a fair few players to the club. A late surge almost saw them reach the play-offs. A lot will be expected of them next season. Position: 8th.

WHITSTABLE TOWN: The Oystermen were strong finishers in the Ryman South as manager Marc Seager and his players came to terms with what is needed to stay in the division. If strikers Ian Pulman and David Cory can emulate their partnership of 20 goals from just 17 games, Whitstable will be one of the names near the top of the division rather than the bottom. Position: 14th.

CHATHAM TOWN: The Chats are a young side and manager Steve Binks has seen enough from them having beaten Dover twice this season, to know they have the potential for greater things next campaign. After Phil Miles quit mid season, Binks did an admirable job and will look to build on this season's achievements. Position: 18th.

Big Boro move for young gun Smalling

Teen's Premier League dream comes true

EXCLUSIVE

By TOM HOWARD

IT IS most young footballers' dreams to play at Wembley and sign for a professional club, but for Maidstone United defender Chris Smalling, both have come true inside a week.

The 18-year-old Chatham Grammar schoolboy has agreed terms with Premier League side Middlesbrough after impressing academy manager Dave Parnaby while playing for the England Schoolboys. Next week he will make the trip to Middlesbrough for a medical before finalising the deal.

Successful

The season has seen an impressive rise for Smalling, who only made his debut for the Maidstone United first team this season.

Since then, he has gone on to represent England Schoolboys in a successful Centenary Trophy campaign including a match against Scotland at Wembley last Saturday. This week he has made a step closer to becoming a Premier League footballer.

Smalling said: "It is fantastic to sign for the club, it is something I have always wanted to do, being a professional footballer and now that is becoming ever closer."

BIG TIME: Chris Smalling has signed for Premier League Middlesbrough

"I have spoken to the coaches at Middlesbrough and Gareth Southgate and they all appear to be really keen on me signing for them. I think I will go straight into the reserve team so I have got a lot of work to do to break into the first team. At least I have this opportunity."

"I am overjoyed with the week I have had. Most boys dream of playing at Wembley and signing for a professional team and now I have done that. It is hard to explain really."

This season has been amazing and it has all just really come together.

"It was absolutely fantastic to play for England at Wembley last week. Just to walk out with all the mascots and see the crowd was something that I will always remember. The whole experience was really memorable as many players will never get to play there in their careers."

A number of clubs came in for Smalling including Gillingham, Fulham and Charlton, but he believes he has made the right move to go to Middlesbrough.

He said: "I have been training at Charlton once a week and the decision to sign for Middlesbrough was hard as I cannot say anything bad against the other clubs that came in for me."

"It was a big decision, but after being spotted by Dave Parnaby and listening to other members of the England Schoolboys – they spoke highly of Middlesbrough. You only have to look at the amount of young players they have developed so that was what swung it for me."

"I think I will have to bide my time a bit before I will get a chance in the first team at Middlesbrough. I will have to put a lot of hard work in."

"You only have to look at players that have come through, like David Wheeler, to see it is possible and one day I hope I can make it as a Premiership footballer."

WARNING: Gills manager Mark Stimson

No rest for Gills squad

MARK Stimson has warned his players they will have their summer cut short and he intends to start preparing an overhaul of the team, starting next week.

The Gillingham boss was less than impressed with the squad he inherited when he joined the club in November last year and sought to clear out a number of players during the campaign.

After a season in which the club struggled to win matches, Stimson is looking forward to the summer.

He said: "I will be having a chat with the players on Tuesday and I will start my preparations for the new season then."

"I have used 40 players this season which is a lot, but I think the squad I have got now is really starting to gel and become the team I want at Gillingham."

"Most teams would probably say a squad of about 25, 26 players is needed to win things but we have had a difficult season. I just wish I had shipped a few players out quicker that did not fit in with my system."

"My first game in charge at Barnet was a real eye opener as to just how big the problem was. We were beaten all over the park and I knew I had to bring players in fast."

The Gills supremo also hopes the club can find a training base to ensure the team can bond together, rather than having to meet at Priestfield as they do at present.

He said: "Coming to the ground every day takes the edge away as we have to come here before we go to training. I want the players to get a buzz from when they step out on the pitch on match days."

A1 finale to roar into Brands

THE WORLD Cup of motorsport will hit Kent this weekend, as Brands Hatch hosts the finale of the A1 Grand Prix season with Great Britain looking to emulate last year's victory.

Team GBR driver Robbie Kerr will be the name that a bumper crowd will be cheering on as he looks to compete with drivers from all over the world in completely identical cars.

Great Britain have had a solid season, lying in fourth position in the standings on 99 points and it is not mathematically impossible for the team to finish second in the championship, behind leaders Switzerland.

The team have only one win to their name this season, coming at Zandvoort with Oliver Jarvis behind the wheel but for the final round, Kerr will take the seat.

Kerr said: "The A1 events at Brands Hatch will be something I will always remember as it was the first time I could hear the noise of the crowd over the sound of the engines. The circuit is close to most drivers' hearts and because you are representing your country. It is great to be the person representing your country as we have always gone well at Brands Hatch and I think we will be on the podium."

With all the cars identical, the rival series to Formula One is a real test of driver and team skill.

Kerr added: "It is a different series and there is a different programme behind it. Formula One is there to push the technical advancement of racing cars whereas we are here as a one-

HOME INTEREST: Robbie Kerr could finish second in race for A1 title make series giving each nation the best opportunity to perform. We are in a controlled environment and it is just purely down to the driver and the team to go out and beat the opposition."

Pre-season tests for Addicks

TWO Kent non-league clubs will help Charlton Athletic prepare for their assault on promotion to the Premier League next season.

The Addicks will play at Stonebridge Road against Ebbsfleet United and Dartford at Princes Park in the run-up to the 2008-09 campaign, the preparation for which has been advanced with the news that new chief executive Steve Waggott will begin work on Tuesday, eight weeks earlier than anticipated.

Waggott will also take on responsibility for player recruitment from football club chairman Richard Murray.

Addicks plc chairman Derek Chappell explained: "Steve will work closely with manager Alan Pardew over the summer to re-shape the first-team squad in readiness for what we all hope will be a successful 2008-09 season."

There will be no long summer break for Charlton's players, however, as Pardew is bringing his squad in for fitness sessions in early June.

"We're probably going to come in midway through the summer to make sure we hit the ground running next year," he said. "We have to be stronger and fitter and prepared for a tough season next year."

Oar-inspiring duo

A RECORD breaking rowing pair are looking to extend their run of victories to 10 straight annual wins in Herne Bay today.

Ryan Hosking, 29, and Darren Ingram, 28, will compete for the historic Viking Shield at their home club of Herne Bay.

The duo, who live in Westgate-on-Sea, hold the record at nine straight wins in the shield coxless pairs and want to extend their run to an unprecedented 10th straight win.

Competition comes from Deal, Dover and Folkestone rowing clubs with other teams from the south of England also taking part.

Kemp's relief as ECB give player thumbs up to play for Kent after spell in controversial Indian series

By GLENN PEARSON

JUSTIN Kemp turned down the chance to play in the multi-million pound Indian Premier League to ensure he could play for Kent this season – a decision that proved less than easy.

After three months of waiting, the burly South African all-rounder finally received clearance to play for Kent this week, and he will line-up for them at Hove in the Friends Provident Trophy at Hove this afternoon.

Having his application rejected twice by the England and Wales Cricket Board for playing in the unauthorised Indian Cricket League (ICL), Kemp admits there was a time he thought his county career would be at an end. In an interview with Kent on Sunday, Kemp said he wanted to return to the club after the 2006 season and is delighted to be back at Canterbury.

He said: "I am relieved everything has been sorted. It has been an anxious couple of months and I am just happy to be able to play cricket for Kent now."

"It was pretty nerve wracking to be honest and it was bit like being in a court of law. I have not been that nervous in a while as the QC delivered his verdict."

"I was confident I had done the right thing to the best of my knowledge, but it didn't stop me being nervous. I am now really relieved."

Confident

"I absolutely thought I might not get to play for Kent. I could have gone elsewhere but I knew I had done everything right. It wasn't a decision made on the spur of the moment and I was confident the panel would see I was committed to playing for Kent."

The 30-year-old hopes the issue will not be a problem for cricketers in the future and feels the ICL was an event that should be given more respect.

He said: "When I got to India I was apprehensive about what was going to happen with my Kent career. There was some good cricket being played and although I was a bit unsure at the start, I see it as a worthwhile experience."

"I think everyone knows where they stand now and hopefully this type of thing won't happen again. I think the ICL has been painted in the wrong way, as all we wanted to do was play cricket. The Indian youngsters had learned a lot and what you must remember

"If I'd known what I know now, I wouldn't have signed the contract with the ICL."

The former South African Test and one-day star is grateful to the club for standing by him over the last few months, but doesn't feel there is any added pressure because of all the hype surrounding his registration with Kent.

He said: "There is always pressure when you walk out on a cricket field but I don't think it would have been any other way. I chose to play in the ICL over the IPL for Kent. I could have gone the IPL route and made more money for myself but I wanted to be available for every game for Kent."

All he wants to do now is let his cricket do the talking and that, he hopes, will be at Canterbury for the rest of his career.

"You do not quite understand how much you love this game until there is the threat of it being taken away from you," he said.

"I would love to see my future out at Kent, that's where I see myself finishing. I think I have about five or six years of good cricket left in me and I want to stay here."

Coach Graham Ford went to the appeal meeting to support his player and knows how much it means to his fellow countryman.

He told Kent on Sunday: "Obviously it's a huge relief for him, and I am really pleased for because his career looked to be in a mess as all he would have is Twenty20 cricket all year and that wouldn't have been good."

"For Kent, he is a guy that makes a contribution on the field and is a massive off-field influence too, helping the younger players improve which is positive from that point of view."
